Charter Protests Grow in Quebec

Subpoenas For Phone Officials

VANCOUVER (CP)—At the request of the B.C. Federation of Labor the railway transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission Monday issued subpoenas to executives of two B.C. Telephone Company affiliates.

The move came on the 11th day of a hearing into a B.C. Tel rate application. It reverses an earlier ruling by the committee that it had no power to command affiliates to produce witnesses.

The subpoenas have gone to officias of Dominion Directory Co. Ltd. and Canadian Telephone and Supplies Ltd. They will take the witness stand today.

The change of mind by the committee follows an opinion given in the Federal Court of Canada Friday by Mr. Chief Justice W. R. Jackett that the commission has the power to subpoena witnesses.

Alex Macdonald of the federation said that the subpoenas set a precedent where affiliate companies are called into question in hearings before federal regulatory bodies.

He said that as the commission conducts hearings on applications by gas transmission and railway companies, as well as telephone utilities, it could mean, say, that "in a situation where CP Rail pushes a job to a subsidiary, the position will be examined."

WANTED FIGURES

At the outset of the present hearing into B.C. Tel's application, both the federation and the attorney-general's department sought orders enforcing B.C. Tel's disclosure of dealings with affiliates and the financial statements of those companies.

The committee ruled against such moves on the grounds that they would be beyond its jurisdictional powers.

B.C. Tel is a member of a 136-company telecommunications empire controlled by General Telephone and Electronics Corp., of New York. The provincial company relies on affiliates for more than half its equipment and supplies.

The federation responded to the committee's action by deciding to press an appeal in the federal court in an attempt to upset the ruling.

On Friday, the federation withdrew its motion for leave to appeal to the court after the presiding judge suggested the federation try the "subpoena route" to gain the information it seeks.

UNFORTUNATE MOVE

Pierre Taschereau, presiding over the rate hearing, said Monday it was unfortunate that witnesses had to be subpoenaed at this stage in the inquiry.

Meanwhile, a telecommunications consultant said Monday he was suprised at the "extraordinary" behaviour of B.C. Tel in holding back information in a rates case.

D. E. L. Iliffe said that it had been impossible from information given by the company to determine what premium on operating costs was due to the utility's allegiance to first generation telephone switching equipment.

Mr. Iliffe, who was called to give evidence by the attorney-general's department was answering points put in cross-examination by Don Morrison for the telephone company.

He said that it appeared to him that B.C. Tel did not make comparisons of its own efficiency with that of other systems. "If such comparisons are not made you cannot judge the state of your own health," he said.

This Is Not, Repeat NOT, Victoria

While Victorians have grown pale and wan under dull clouds easterners, like this Montreal youngster, are looking for ways to keep cool.

Victoria's average sunshine for the first 21-days of June is 190 hours, but in the same period this year we received only 128 hours of solar warmth.

Meanwhile, Montrealers basked under near-record temperatures that have resulted in water rationing. Temperatures in many eastern centres last week climbed to the mid-eighties.

But every cloud has a silver lining. Victoria's average rainfall for the first 21 days of June is .85 inches, but this year rainfall is only .47 inches.

Monday — the first day of summer — it was the same old story: clouds. Still, yesterday's maximum temperature of 75 degrees was the same as a sunny June 21 last year.

The weatherman sums up Victoria's June weather thus: it is "certainly cooler and certainly cloudier" this year.

And the weather forecast for the next two or three days? Continuing cloudiness, coolness and rain.

Hydro Talks Continue As Strike in Second Day

Top union officials were meeting Labor Minister James Chabot today as nearly all 2,000 electrical workers at B.C. Hydro were on strike for the first full day.

The men began walking out Monday, the last day they could legally strike in the contract dispute with the crown corporation.

Left behind were skeleton crews in generation stations and control centres so that there was no interruption in power supply to consumers.

The only picket line which was established was at Jordan River hydro-electric construction project, where 250 men were idled. There was no picketing of Mica Dam in the Interior, where 4,000 construction men are working.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said close to 400 electrical workers on Vancouver Island were on strike today.

MINIMAL CREWS

Tom Forkin, president of Local 258 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the strikers are coming "as close as possible" to shutting down hydro operations in British Columbia, but service was being maintained with minimal crews.

Main effect, he said, would be to suspend all maintenance work. The union would have emergency crews available, he added.

Today's meeting with Chabot, in Victoria, was to be attended by Local 258 business agent Doug Cronk and Jim Wolfgang, the IBEW's Vancouver-based international representative.

"They are going to lay our whole position before the minister. They are going to make a strong appeal for some impartial independent conciliator to settle the dispute," said Forkin.

MAIN ISSUES

Main issues in dispute are wages — B.C. Hydro has offered a 14 per cent raise over two years while the union has proposed 18½ per cent — job security in terms of protecting employees from contracting out of work and what the union has described as proposed weakenings by Hydro in the areas of isolation pay, job classifications and sickness benefit.

B. C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum, in his first full statement, said today the public would bear the brunt of the strike and it is "difficult to understand" why a strike should be declared "when they are already among the highest paid in Canada."

He said the average income of journeymen linemen in 1970 was $11,165 and some electrical workers earned more than $16,000.

"We will do our best to maintain service but it should be realized that it will be extremely difficult for a limited number of management and professional personnel to do the work that is normally handled by 2,000 electrical workers," he said.

"It will not be possible, of course, to provide for any new customers while the strike lasts."

Shrum said the B.C. Hydro offer would raise the journeyman lineman rate to $5.77 an hour from last April 1 and to

NO OTTAWA APPROVAL OF MACKENZIE ROUTE

OTTAWA — The Canadian government has not approved in principle an oil pipeline down the Mackenzie River Valley from Alaska to the midwestern United States, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today.

Sharp reiterated the government's opposition to the proposed tanker route down the B.C. coast and said that this opposition was in no way related to the Mackenzie pipeline concept.

Court Hears Pentagon Case

NEW YORK (AP)—With all eight judges sitting because of the "extraordinary importance" of the issue, the federal appeals court here today considers the government's move to halt the New York Times' publication of classified Pentagon papers.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals extended a restraining order against The Times Monday to allow the full court to hear what the newspaper called "a unique case in the history of the nation."

Chief Judge Henry J. Friendly said that all the members were "in accord in their belief that this appeal raised the questions of such extraordinary importance that it should be heard by all the judges."

In a similar case involving the Washington Post, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled Monday that the newspaper could go ahead with its series based on the same Pentagon study but the appeals court quickly ordered a stay.

Now a third newspaper, the Boston Globe, has printed what it says are excerpts from the Pentagon study on the Vietnam war. It includes a report on a high-level meeting at which a top United States officer demanded that commanders be given the freedom to use tactical nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

TOP OFFICIALS MET

The report, taken from the 47-volume Pentagon study of the war, said that at a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Honolulu in June, 1964, Admiral Harry D. Felt, then commander of the Pacific forces, demanded the option to use nuclear weapons "as had been assumed under various plans." There was no mention of the "various plans."

Also present at the Honolulu meeting were Defence Secre-

Bourassa Caught In 2-Way Squeeze

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition to any acceptance by Quebec of the Victoria constitutional agreement mounted today prior to Premier Robert Bourassa's meeting with the Liberal party caucus and his cabinet.

Rumors also circulated that acceptance of the Victoria charter may cause the resignation of some cabinet ministers or a shifting of their portfolios.

There was no official reaction to the rumors, but sources said Bourassa and Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay held a long private meeting Monday night before the premier met with other members of his cabinet.

Premier Bourassa told reporters Monday it was "possible" he would announce whether the province would accept or reject the Victoria charter following the Liberal caucus meeting scheduled for 6 p.m. tonight.

He added that no matter what the final decision is, it will be made known by the June 28 deadline agreed on by the 11 provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau at the Victoria constitutional conference held last week.

Meantime, the Federation of the Quebec St. Jean Baptiste Societies and its Montreal chapter placed a full-page advertisement in today's editions of several French-language dailies, including Le Devoir, condemning the Victoria charter for a proposed Canadian constitution.

The advertisement referred to the charter as "an ultimatum on the Quebec government," and linked it to the so-called conscription crises of 1917 and 1944. At that time, a large number of Quebecers opposed conscription during wartime, though the country as a whole accepted it.

★ ★ ★

Premier Bennett this morning announced the B.C. cabinet had given the charter full support.

On Monday, Ontario Premier William Davis said his cabinet will give the charter "full and unqualified support."

Alberta has accepted and New Brunswick has hinted support as has the federal government. All cabinets must decide within six days.

SIGNAL INDICATES NEW LAUNCHING

BOCHUM, West Germany (AP) — The Bochum Observatory said today it was picking up a new radio signal that could indicate another manned Soviet space ship had been sent up to join the Salute space laboratory.

Director Heinz Kaminski said the new signal was picked up on a frequency normally used by manned Soviet space vehicles.

B.C. Supports 'Victoria Charter'

The B.C. cabinet has unanimously accepted the Canadian constitutional charter drawn up by last weeks' constitutional conference in Victoria.

Premier Bennett made the announcement today, saying he thinks all other provinces and the federal government will also accept it.

Bennett said he thinks the B.C. legislature will unanimously ratify the charter and repeated his earlier offer to call a special session if necessary to join all other governments in giving speedy approval.

Bennett, asked about the mounting opposition to the charter in Quebec, said that if he were Premier Bourassa he would recommend the charter to the legislature.

"In 19 years I have seen many pressure groups attack us," Bennett said. "I don't think governments are elected to respond to pressure groups — they're there to protect the public from pressure groups."

He said he feels the charter will be known as the Victoria charter and he described the conference as "the most historic ever held in Canada since Confederation."

The premier said the charter should be considered in comparison with the BNA Act, not against some ideal of perfection in individual minds. On that basis, he said, everyone should be able to accept it.

Budget Debate Begins

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson was variously described by Conservatives in the Commons today as a "mobile catastrophe" and operator of a shell game.

The first description was plied by Gerald Baldwin, servative House leader, and the second by Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial man who led off the first day of the budget debate.

The debate will occupy nearly all the Commons' time until its scheduled adjournment June 30 for a two-months summer holiday.

New Shocks Felt

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A moderately strong earthquake jarred residential areas south and east of here early today following a series of tremors felt mainly to the north in the San Fernando Valley. The new shock came at 5:41 a.m. PDT and a preliminary finding gave it a tentative magnitude of 4.0 on the Richter scale.

AGRICULTURE SPEECH

Philip Drops 'Clanger' on Market

LONDON (UPI) — British newspapers today expressed surprise at a speech by Prince Philip on the Common Market made while British negotiators were trying to win the nation's entry to the economic community. One paper called him a "chump" for making it.

"Philip drops a market clanger," headlined the Daily Mirror over a story about Philip's speech Monday at a conference of Commonwealth farmers near Edinburgh.

In the address, Philip described the market's farm system as producing "a most frightful mess." He added: "I think that this is something this country is about to discover if and when it joins the Common Market.

★ ★ ★

"There are cases already within the market where long-standing agricultural patterns have been completely upended as a result of the operation of the Common Market system in Europe."

The House of Commons is expected to vote this fall on the terms for British entry to the Common Market which are at present being thrashed out in talks in Luxembourg. The issue is expected to come to a close vote.

★ ★ ★

In a front page editorial, the Daily Mirror said: "Prince Philip is a chump to make such a controversial speech about agriculture and the Common Market."

The Sun headlined its story: "Philip's market meddling."

In the Luxembourg talks meanwhile France and Britain were reported at loggerheads today over New Zealand dairy imports as the current round of talks went into its second day.

Dutch sources said Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France refused to discuss proposed British contributions to the market's budget until Britain's chief negotiator made a reply to the market's proposal for New Zealand dairy imports. New Zealand has termed the proposal insufficient.

Net Fish Tieup Prompts Action

Threats that British Columbia salmon net fishermen will go on strike Saturday have commercial trollers studying strategy to allow them to continue fishing and selling catches — in American ports if they must.

Homer Stevens, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, said in Vancouver Monday a B.C. coast ballot was 84.5 per cent in favor of strike action if net fishermen don't get a better contract offer from the Fisheries' Association of B.C.

In a separate ballot the net fishermen voted 86.8 per cent to start a strike at 6 p.m. Saturday unless the association "will negotiate a substantial settlement."

INDISCREET

In Vancouver today, Bob Edwards, secretary-manager of the 600-strong Pacific Trollers' Association, said it would be "indiscreet" to discuss any plans the members have to protect their interests should the net fishermen go on strike.

He said he had no knowledge of a meeting held on Vancouver Island at which troller fishermen discussed alternatives should the threatened strike take place.

Information from a reliable source outlines a plan which would have the trollers designating some of the larger boats in the fleet as packers. These would be stationed at various points along the coast. When loaded they would sell the catches in Seattle.

Edwards, while denying any knowledge of the plan, said it was possible that Vancouver Island trollers had mapped a course of action.

WOULD SUFFER

"The PTA was formed with the intention of protecting our members. The trollers want to get their season somehow. With the volume fishing period coming up in the next two months a lot of them would suffer if they can't continue fishing.

"They should be able to continue fishing and be able to dispose of their catches — here or in the United States."

Edwards agreed that several of the larger boats had been licensed as packers and the appropriate gear installed.

FULL VOTE NEEDED

But, he added, there would have to be a full vote of all members before such action could take place.

Edwards said "there was nothing to be gained" by discussing strategy at this time.

"People are still looking at each other across the table. There may still be no vote. How far Homer Stevens is prepared to go I don't know."

The UFAWU recommended last week that the 4,500 net fishermen reject an offer of about four per cent more in payment for salmon. It said the companies last year paid 39 cents a pound for sockeye, 30 cents for coho, 14½ cents for pinks and 15½ cents to 17½ cents for chums.

The last association offer was 40½ cents a pound for sockeye in 1971 and 41 cents in 1972, the union said. Other proposals were 30 and 30½ cents for coho, 15½ cents each year for pinks and 15½ and 16 cents a pound for chums.

Schibli Re-Elected

Members of Victoria local of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters Monday re-elected John Schibli as president for his fourth term.

Also re-elected by acclamation were Art Kilgore, vice-president; Jim Sawyer, business agent and financial secretary; Barry Lidstone, recording secretary, and Vince Sullivan, treasurer.

Victoria Local 1598, with 156 members, is one of the largest in the network of building trades on Vancouver

. . . B.C. HYDRO

$6.14 next April 1. The old rate was $5.39.

"We feel our offer, being much greater than the annual increase in the cost of living, is not only generous but in cents per hour more than that already accepted by other hydro unions. One must also keep in mind that IBEW members are already our most highly paid wage earners,' he said.

Shrum said the union has "offered nothing significant in return" to a number of management concessions "and has adopted an inflexible position on major issues, including wages.

"We feel it would be grossly unfair to our other employees to give our electrical workers preferential treatment particularly when they already receive higher wages than the other unions."

PUBLIC INTEREST

Chabot, in comments Monday, said the strike is "not a public interest situation at the moment" and there has been no cabinet decision to use return-to-work and compulsory arbitration powers under the Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33).

"We've allowed a lot of time in this dispute. As I've said before, we will only use this legislation as a last resort. Not before."

Asked about Mica dam, where there is no picketing at this time, he said "we would probably tolerate a picket line at Mica, but not for long. It would be too costly for all involved including the workers."

Union spokesman Cronk said employees had to strike Monday, following collapse of negotiations Sunday, because it was the last day to legally strike. Under the law, unions can only strike in the three months following a strike vote.

"The strike will continue until the dispute is resolved one way or another or some system is set up to solve it," he said.

"The present situation is one of crisis, brinkmanship if you want. We don't have a choice. Hydro wouldn't budge."

. . . QUEBEC

"As in the days of the conscription plebiscite, Quebecers must answer no to Ottawa's ultimatum," the advertisement said.

It called for each Quebecer to be "at his post, and may each Quebecer, without delay and according to his means, send a telegram or letter to Mr. Robert Bourassa . . . telling him that we must say no to the ultimatum of the Victoria conference."

The statement by the 165,000-member society, founded more than a century ago to promote the interest of French-Canadian Roman Catholics, comes two days prior to St. Jean Baptiste Day.

HAD CLASHES BEFORE

The holiday, honoring the province's patron saint, has been marked by violence and clashes with police in the past.

A spokesman for the Montreal police department said the usual precautions will be taken this year for the holiday but that nothing extraordinary was planned.

The society also has joined with several teacher, labor and political groups to form a "common front" to oppose the constitutional agreement.

In a statemen Monday, Yvon Charbonneau, president of the 65,000-member Quebec Teachers Corporation, announced the formation of the front and blasted the Victoria charter as "undemocratic."

In addition to the QTC and the SSJB, also joining the front were the Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party and the 225,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions.

DECLINED COMMENT

Meantime, Mr. Bourassa has declined to say if he will personally recommend to his cabinet that the charter be accepted.

Francois Cloutier, cultural affairs minister, said the charter should be studied both in itself and in regard to the Quebec social context.

He said he would not necessarily base his judgment on adverse public reaction. Politicians had to take public opinion into account but also had to take a position of leadership sometimes.

Rejection of the charter by any of the 10 provincial governments would probably eliminate any constitutional reform for years.

Prime Minister Trudeau has suggested that if agreement is not reached now on establishing a Canadian constitution, talks would be suspended indefinitely.

tary Robert S. McNamara; State Secretary Dean Rusk; Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge; Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, and John McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The discussion about the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam arose, the Globe says, on the question of whether the Chinese Communist forces would enter the war.

"Secretary McNamara then went on to say that the possibility of major ground action also led to a series of questions of having to use nuclear weapons at some point," The Globe quotes the report.

"Admiral Felt responded emphatically that there was on possible way to hold off the Communists on the ground without the use of tatical nuclear weapons and that it was essential that the commandehs be given the freedom to use these as had been assumed under various plans," the report said.

The report in The Globe also says that in October, 1961, Gen. Taylor advised President John F. Kennedy to order an 8,000-man task force into South Vietnam.

The Globe says that "President Kennedy stepped up covert actions against North Vietnam and increased the number of advisors to 16,000 men before he was assassinated in November, 1963, but he never committed the United States ground unit as Taylor had suggested."

Toastmaster Chief Visits

The president of Toastmasters' International, a club concerned with public speaking, met five Victoria club representatives Monday, and was greeted by Alderman Robert Baird on behalf of Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Arthur Diamond, of Indiana, following a weekend conference in Vancouver, was the guest of the Pioneer Club 231 at the 7 a.m. breakfast meeting Monday. He will visit various clubs before his return to the United States, talking on the ideals of better listening, thinking and speaking.

He was elected president in August of last year.

Boy's Dad Collapsed

The father of a 14-year-old boy charged Monday in connection with the stabbing death of a 58-year-old Saanich woman is in good condition in hospital after collapsing with a heart attack following his son's court appearance.

The youth was charged with delinquency in connection with the death Saturday of Miss Mary Karpenic in her apartment suite at Hampton House, 3333 Seaton, in family and children's court before Judge Harold Alder.

Alder remanded the youth for psychiatric examination to Riverview mental hospital on the mainland until July 5.

The boy was undefended Monday although there was some discussion of having a Legal Aid lawyer appointed for him.

The boy's father collapsed as he was leaving the court after the hearing and was taken to hospital by ambulance.

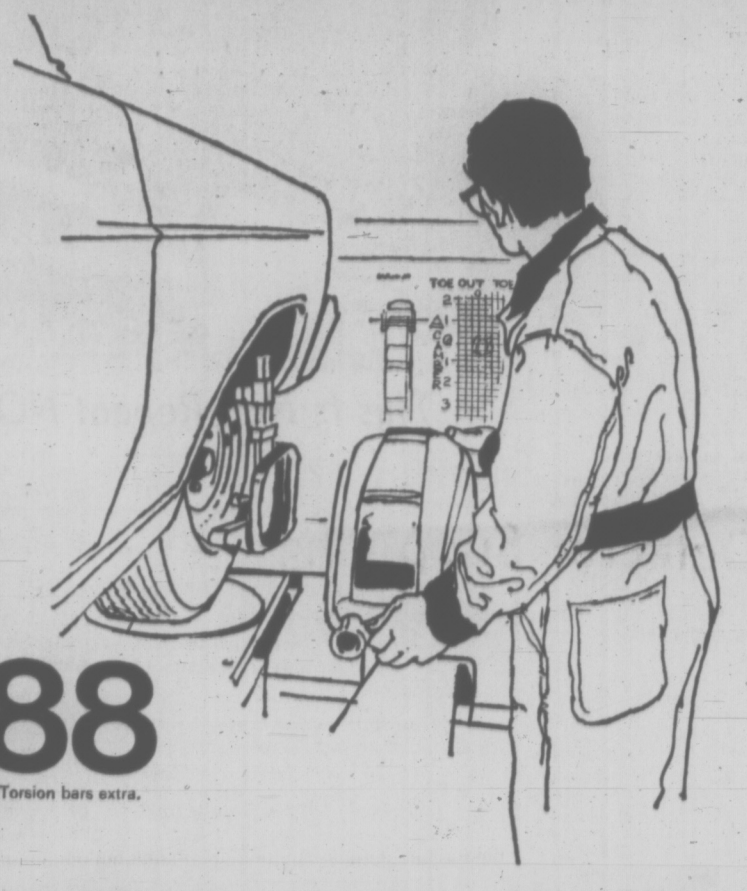
You're miles and dollars ahead with Firestone Riding System Service



"How this $5.88 wheel alignment could save you forty dollars — or more."

Torsion bars extra.

"Let's start at the beginning.
"Why do all cars need a periodic wheel alignment?
"As time goes by, the front wheels go out of true. They may toe-in. Or toe-out. Or they may slope in or slope out. (That's called camber and caster.) This happens when you hit potholes or curbs. But it also results from normal vibration.
"Why is this a problem?
"Because when front wheels are out of alignment, your car won't handle properly. Which can be a safety hazard. You can damage various mechanical components. And most of all, you can wear out your tires too fast. Far too fast. You will develop bald spots and scrapes on tires that are otherwise in pretty good shape. A tire that should go 25,000 miles could need replacing at 5,000.
"So this $5.88 could save you the price of a new set of tires. Which is a pretty good investment in any language.
"Since proper alignment is so important, you wouldn't want to trust the job to just anyone. It makes sense to see the Riding System specialists. With the trained technicians. And the right equipment. At Firestone."

SPEC Protests Discharge

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (CP) — Several British Columbia submissions are expected to be heard tonight by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on an application by Atlantic Richfield Co. to discharge 3.74 million gallons a day of oil refinery effluent into the Strait of Georgia at Ferndale, Wash.

A spokesman at the Seattle district office of the corps said Monday that non-Americans will be permitted to speak because the corps is anxious to obtain all views.

He pointed out that the jurisdiction of the engineers in dealing with such applications does not extend beyond U.S. borders, but he said that if outside interests are affected, the corps should be aware of it.

The northwest region of the U.S. federal water quality office of the environmental protection agency is also involved in the hearing.

OIL SPILL

Heading the list of the B.C. submissions will be one from the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control. The group says the company's refinery would lead to tanker traffic from Alaska down the B.C. coast and pose the threat of an oil spill.

The brief, to be presented by SPEC project director Gwen Mallard, will also argue that the effluent would find its way into the B.C. portion of the strait.

Meanwhile in Edmonton Monday, federal environment Minister Jack Davis expressed strong opposition to large oil tankers carrying their cargo through Juan de Fuca Strait.

In a speech delivered for the minister by his parliamentary secretary, Eymard Corbin, Davis said: "Why bring the tankers in past Victoria when scenic values and the recreational potential of this tight little wonderland could be destroyed . . . in a matter of hours."

SASK. ELECTION ANYONE'S GUESS

REGINA (CP) — The outcome of Wednesday's Saskatchewan general election is anybody's guess and few observers are exuding too much confidence in their predictions.

Most people do believe, however, that the Progressive Conservative supporters likely hold the key.

There are just 16 Conservatives in the field compared with 60 each for the Liberals and New Democrats. If the Conservative vote in ridings where no Conservatives are running went heavily in either direction, it could mean the difference between election and defeat in most instances.

And if John Diefenbaker still has his former influence with the Saskatchewan Conservatives, his recent comments may sway them to the Liberal side.

GIVES BLESSING

The former prime minister from Prince Albert, in a recent television interview, indicated that he gives his blessings to the free-enterprise party, meaning the Liberals.

Both leaders of the major parties have expressed confidence, with Premier Ross Thatcher expecting to take more than 40 seats compared with the 34 he held in the last legislature.

Allan Blakeney of the NDP, in somewhat of a surprising show of confidence, predicted his party could form the next government by winning 37 seats. The NDP had 24 seats in the last legislature which was made up of 59 seats.

Redistribution added one seat in Regina for this campaign.

Throughout the campaign, the Liberals have been promoting the benefits of diversification; Saskatchewan's future depends on a wider tax base brought about by industrial development.

THATCHER PROUD

Premier Thatcher has spoken with pride of his accomplishments in the industrial area, pointing to such developments as the potash industry; one pulp mill completed and another about to start, a proposed new iron mine, a uranium mine and the "175 new industries" the Liberals have secured for the province since 1964.

He also has chastised the NDP for making expensive promises and warns the electorate that such promises can only mean higher taxes.

Blakeney, on the other hand, believes an NDP government could reduce property taxes by having the province assume a greater share of the education tax.

The NDP leader has had plenty of help from federal and Manitoba NDP leaders in his campaign which has largely been centred around the grains stabilization program and better deals for the people in resource development.

NDP speakers say the $100 million farmers will get from the stabilization payment is a monstrous bribe. They also promise better medical care services and benefits to the elderly.

Low Water Pressure Spots Raises Firefighting Worry

Oak Bay council's works committee was told Monday that two sections of Oak Bay have only about 25 per cent of the water pressure recommended by the fire protection engineering division of the Canadian Underwriters' Association.

Location of the two areas were withheld, being identified only as Beach Drive.

Other areas of the municipality, according to municipal engineer Geoffrey White, were "either all right or close enough not to make a difference."

He told the committee it would take about $13,000 to bring the two low-pressure areas up to the recommended standard. The committee moved that the work be given priority in the 1972 estimates.

FINGERS CROSSED

"And keep our fingers crossed until then," White said.

Ald. Brian Smith replied: "It's been that way a long time."

"In that location you always have the sea handy," noted Ald. Douglas Watts. "It may make a bit of a mess . . . but there's plenty of water around."

White said use of sea water might ruin firefighting equipment but committee members said the CUA's standards represented goals to be achieved rather than the essential.

After the meeting adjourned, however, the committee instructed White to question the fire chief on the consequences of using sea water in an emergency.

Questioned on whether the situation in the two areas might result in higher fire insurance rates, committee members doubted if insurance on single-family homes would be affected.

Water pressure problems in another area received immediate action earlier in the meeting.

Ten residents of the eastern end of Somass Drive had complained that pressure at their end of the street did not allow enough water to flush toilets, run washing machines and other equipment when lawn sprinklers were being used.

The committee will recommend to council that replacement of the pipe in that area, estimated to cost about $4,000, be done this year. The work would replace another item in the 1971 budget.

HIGHER FEES

The committee will also recommend to council that fees for sewer and water connections be increased.

If approved, cost of installing a single sewer connection will go from $135 to $180 and the price for two pipes in the same trench will increase from $165 to $210.

The streets and traffic committee will ask the municipal solicitor if the streets bylaw can be amended so residents can be made liable for keeping boulevards, as well as sidewalks, free of rubbish and noxious weeds.

Chief John Green said he was uncertain that even the enforcement of the current regulation on sidewalks would stand up in court.

The committee agreed that the chief instruct the police inspector to discuss complaints by nearby residents on Florence about parking obstructions by Saunders and Hitchman employees with the garage owners.

The committee will recommend that a proposed extension of the north boat ramp at Cattle Point, to cost $1,500, be included in the 1972 estimates.

DRUG-GROWING FARM GRANT CANCELLED

OTTAWA (CP) — Opportunities-for-Youth officials have cancelled a $9,600 grant to a British Columbia youth camp after the camp organizers pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana plants.

An official said Monday that only the costs to date — about $1,000 — would be paid.

Hugh Faulkner, parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, told the Commons a week ago that the grant had been suspended after the organizers made their plea to a Prince George court. They were suspected of growing the weed on the camp ground.

Defector Supplying Useful Information

LONDON (CP) — British authorities are reported to be gaining valuable information from Soviet electronics expert Anatoly Fedoseyev though diplomatic sources continued to play down the defector's role in the Soviet space program.

While the whereabouts of the "prominent electronics engineer" was still shrouded in secrecy, published reports today suggested that Fedoseyev is co-operating with British intelligence agents and answering questions, thus proving "of positive value."

Meanwhile, Sir Dennis Greenhill, Britain's deputy foreign minister, flew to Moscow for a scheduled exchange of views with Soviet authorities on prospects for a European security conference and related matters.

There appeared some likelihood that Fedoseyev's name may creep into the Moscow conversations though British authorities maintained there should be no reason why the defection should ruffle Anglo-Soviet relations.

Official sources denied initial reports that Fedoseyev was a vice-minister of the Soviet space program or that he was directly involved in Soviet satellites and Sputniks. Later reports from Moscow described the 52-year-old scientist as a doctor of technology and a professor with the Soviet Institute for Radio and Electronics Instruments.

DEFECTED IN PARIS

He apparently defected towards the end of May when he visited Paris as part of an 80-member Soviet delegation to the Paris Air Show. First reports suggested that French authorities were embarrassed by the demand for asylum and whisked him off to NATO headquarters in Brussels aboard a helicopter.

However British informants said there was no truth to the helicopter story and that Fedoseyev made his way to Britain across the channel aboard a normal commercial service. Some reports suggested he crossed aboard a commercial ferry.

But once in Britain he was given the closest official attention with deep secrecy surrounding his whereabouts. Some newspapers said he was given an armed guard in fear that Soviet agents might try to kidnap him.

These reports gained significance when a television network learned Monday that a foreign individual equipped with briefcase called on a certain London address asking for Fedoseyev. The network said this address had been used previously to house defecting Russian.

While Fedoseyev has not been located, The Guardian says the 52-year-old scientist has spent long periods in British security bases outside of London answering questions. The United States is reported anxious to question him as well.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Negotiating Roast Pork

THE B.C. HYDRO STRIKE REvives in active form the question of walkouts in essential public industries. This involves a principle which has little do with the actual details of any labor-management controversy, for irrespective of the terms and conditions of a contract advanced by either side, the rights of the consumers where public utilities are concerned should be paramount.

The threat of community deprivation of water or electricity, or such services as hospitals or public protection, is not an acceptable weapon with which to settle disagreement between management and workers. That is not to say that workers in such employment should be frustrated in their efforts to obtain better pay or working conditions. But it should be made clear in the terms of employment that the worker is entering a special category of public service in which continuity of function — both by employer and employee — takes precedence over other considerations.

There could be compensation for loss of the big-stick weapon of the strike through provision for impartial tribunals, guarantees of employment, pay parity with similar occupations, and other means.

The public cannot be expected to come periodically under the threat of a serious breakdown in essential community services in order that an equitable wage settlement may be made. In this day and age, when we enjoy the fruit of so many advances in science, medicine and industrial techniques, it implies a reversion to medieval concepts that the heartbeat of a community should be subject to stoppage merely because a group of individuals cannot reach agreement within a specified time. It smacks too much of the crude device of burning down the house in order to obtain roast pork.

One of the disadvantages of this situation is that harsh use of the strike weapon in essential industries must inevitably lead to strong legal curbs on labor's powers. The greater the hardship imposed on the public, or the more serious the threat, the stronger will be the defensive reaction against it. This could be to labor's — and society's — long-range disadvantage.

While it is an accepted concept of modern society that its evolution should result from confrontations and pressures, from the give-and-take of human striving, the large and irretrievable losses due to prolonged strikes make it clear that there must be a better way to achieve industrial settlements.

No Way Back

SOME ESTIMATES PLACE THE number of American servicemen in Vietnam using heroin at about 37,000, but according to some congressmen who have visited the country, it could be closer to 60,000. This could pose a greater threat to American soldiers in that area than does the Viet Cong.

No one will be able to estimate the costs to the country — costs measured not only in the hard cash of addiction, the crimes committed by addicts to raise money when and if they return to the United States — but also in the human degradation and the loss of constructive talents wasted by the attrition of drugs.

That may be largely an American problem. But the effort to help addicts seeking to break away from heroin — and the high percentage of failure in that effort — is of concern wherever the drug is used.

A major rehabilitation centre in South Vietnam presents the pessimistic forecast that of those taking the program, over the long haul only 15 to 30 per cent will succeed in staying off heroin. These are odds to be considered by any community in which heroin addiction is becoming a major problem.

The prospect of rehabilitation revealed by the intensive efforts of U.S. authorities in Vietnam carries its own warning. Once "hooked" on heroin, the chances are from 7 to 3 to over 5 to 1 that there will be no lasting release from it, short of death. They are odds that can scarcely be attractive to even the most brash of young experimenters.

A National Issue

THE COMPROMISE ON DEfence priorities spelled out in April, 1969, will be amplified in the forthcoming white paper on defence policy. The priorities then established were, the protection of Canadian sovereignty, continental defence, NATO, and United Nations peace-keeping. Defence Minister Donald Macdonald, in reply to a question in the Commons, indicated that the white paper could be released despite the Commons' summer recess because of the length of time it has been awaited.

The cabinet has been preoccupied with taxation reform and constitutional matters and will presumably soon be in a position to deal with the defence policy statement. Specific matters like the Canadian effort in anti-submarine warfare and in North American air defence are expected to be among the items discussed.

Despite the compromise in 1969, Canada's role in defence, so closely allied to its image in the international arena, is still in a state of uncertainty. The Soviet-Canadian protocol has renewed discussion of the subject. The white paper will keep the kettle boiling and help to form a Canadian consensus on this important issue.

Low Man

IT HAS BEEN SAID THAT PEOple today are over-governed. A federal system is perhaps by its very nature open to this criticism, although the multiplicity of governments in Canada and the United States, whether excessive or not, has been defended as a political virtue.

Figures released in the United States by the Committee for Economic Development point up the situation there: there were in 1968 81,248 units of government—18,048 municipalities, 17,105 townships, 3,049 counties, 21,782 school districts and 21,264 other special districts. Most of these units levied taxes.

These figures are mind-boggling even when the population of the United States is brought into consideration. Democratic federalism has its work cut out merely to reduce its awesome complexity.

The taxpayer is the beginning and end of all government and the maze of governmental functions should, in the most economic and effective way, meet his needs first. After all, he pays for it.

Letter

Hours of Labor

I was distressed to note in a recent editorial a statement to the effect that a university professor is "paid for two jobs: to teach classes for part of his time — usually nine hours a week for half a year — and to advance himself in his field of study during the rest of the time." This hoary old myth should be buried once and for all. My colleagues work ten to twelve hours a day during term and often five and a half or six days a week the rest of the year.

Except in certain areas of field study, research continues throughout the year and two weeks of holiday would be average. In most sciences research is contemporaneous with and integrated with senior and graduate teaching. Many of us have federal and provincial research monies that require careful husbanding to enable our research, our careers and our university to prosper.

It is not the fault of the public if one hour's lecture is equated with one hour's work. The university, its scholars and its administration must do a better job of explaining the ways of scholarship to the citizens of Victoria. One would have hoped, however, that you, Sir, would have been more careful before indulging in mythology! — M. J. Ashwood-Smith, Associate Professor of Biology, University of Victoria.

Having Lost All Round, Claim Victory

DEMOCRATIC governments in Canada and elsewhere, obey three laws, all unwritten and never mentioned, of course, at the recent constitutional conference. By the Law of Inevitable Contrariety a political leader, elected on a certain policy will do the precise opposite on reaching office. By the Law of Deceptive Direction a government that seems to be advancing will usually be retreating, and vice versa. By the Law of Contrived Confusion (sometimes known as the Poker Face Syndrome or Solemn Bluff) a government that has lost its way and messed up all its plans will appear to be in regnant command of everything.

Hutchison

These three laws are being strictly enforced in Canada today. The Trudeau government, elected to put our financial and economic affairs in order, after long disorder, has further deranged them. A government apparently advancing against inflation is in full retreat. A government which claims to have the economy and the whole future systematically planned doesn't know what to do next.

Natural Course

This should not surprise nor particularly alarm us because it is the natural course of human events, both in public and private life. It is common to every government, of every system, in the world (though the Communists disguise it better than the democrats). We should also remember, in the case of Canada, that if the government is reversing its policies while pretending to maintain them, the opposition parties have no alternative policies to offer, no burden of responsibility, no prospect of coming to office and no right to claim it.

Most of these facts are plain enough and most of the pretences transparent, but the latest among them must puzzle even the wisest spectator. For observe the intellectual conjuring act which the government, kindly assisted by the opposition, has lately performed before our dizzy eyes, like a shell game for yokels at a country fair.

We are told by Edgar Benson, with an auditor's straight face, that the government will not try to control wages, profits, costs and prices. The thought of such a thing is repulsive and ridiculous. In a free enterprise system the government can never intervene in the smooth, flawless, automatic mechanisms of the market.

Even my simple mind can grasp this awesome truth. But who is uttering it? No one but the very government which, through deficit budgets, swelling debt, massive printing-press money, taxes, redistribution of wealth between men and regions and many other levers, already is trying to control the market and making its automatic mechanisms unworkable.

Inflation by Government

It was government, let us not forget, that unloosed inflation in the first place, some ten years ago. It was government that guaranteed full employment at all times. It was government that knew all the answers. And today it is government that says it would not dream of controlling anything of importance. The monster has been released by government but someone else must cage it.

The wild inconsistency of this doctrine should not shake us. It is to be expected and is being practised by most of the world's governments, on a larger scale in the United States and Britain, for instance, than in Canada.

Besides, neither the honest motives nor the need of government's original intervention in the economy can be questioned when clearly we have long ago passed beyond the age of Adam Smith into the age of Keynes and are now past Keynes as well. Intervention there has been, must be and will be, increasingly, whether you like it or not. But what must shake the most unshakable among us is the brazen effrontery and blaring trombons insolence of governments everywhere which tell us that without controls they are fully in control of events, that we have no right to complain and no reason to worry.

All the mistakes are forgivable since, with few exceptions, all of us participated in them. It is impossible, however, to forgive the politicians of all parties who pretend that no mistakes have been made, who assure us that the problems are being solved when they are getting worse, who refuse to touch or even mention ever-rising production costs, the root cause of the problems, and who are now in panic flight from reality.

What, then, is happening behind the bluff and bluster? Surely it is quite obvious. Having courageously tried to manage the economy for the general good, having sincerely vowed to cure inflation and unemployment, and having failed everywhere, government in Canada and the United States is terrified of the 1972 elections and has decided to let things rip until the polls are safely closed. Another round of inflation has not merely been accepted; it has been deliberately planned. So enjoy your next ride on the roller coaster. It should be exciting.

Perhaps this plan will work and the ride will last long enough for election purposes but not much longer. Then some form of government intervention will become unavoidable, unless things settle down miraculously in the meantime. For one law of life is stronger than all the laws of politics combined — the law of survival. And according to this law, society will not forever allow government, business, labor or any other giant power to hold it under ransom. Even with the best intentions and all the genial tricks of the game, you cannot fool and rob all the people all the time.

Little Gained by Ontario at Victoria

THE Ontario government's main concern at the Victoria Constitutional Conference was to get it over with. In Ontario's scheme of things, the conference that counts was to be the next one, when that "most fundamental" of issues, the "best and most effective matching of revenues and responsibilities," was finally to be confronted. Getting it over with some semblance of success, however, proved to be more of a hurdle than Premier William Davis anticipated. His repetitions of optimism were blatantly at odds with the tensions and controversies which developed here and he was ill-equipped by way of experience and homework, and indeed by way of ability, to make much of a contribution to their resolution.

Greer

Those who were inside the conference room report that Davis' ad hoc interventions were helpful. But his formal offerings, both in public and private session, were typically bland, empty statements reflecting only a naive hope that since most of the items on the agenda had been agreed to in principle at last February's meeting, all that remained was to clear up the various "reservations" lodged at that time by some governments (including Ontario) and agree on textual language. That would be a successful conclusion of "phase one" of the constitutional review and mark "a positive beginning" for tackling the redistribution of legislative and taxing powers at the conference, which the sooner held, the better.

These formal statements in the earlier sessions did not even refer to Quebec's submissions for jurisdictional "paramountcy" in the field of income security, the issue that everyone else viewed as the Rubicon the conference had to cross. When Mr. Davis finally realized that he could not avoid comment on this controversy, he intervened with a tortuous list of "notes" which even he could not clarify for the press and which appeared in retrospect to be more of an effort to jump on the bandwagon of a concession already made by Premier Bourassa than a desire to give at least partial support to Quebec while the issue still hung in the balance.

Indeed, throughout the piece, there was a decided lack of ability and desire on Ontario's part to help Quebec. The private Ontario-Quebec exchanges which were commonplace under John Robarts did not, as far as the press was able to discover, take place. Mr. Davis and Mr. Bourassa never met for a quiet chat; their subordinates were never seen or reported together. The loneliness of the Quebec delegation, in fact, was one of the most obvious and disturbing features of the conference. Ontario, it was clear, had determined on a policy of non-alignment in Quebec's dispute with Ottawa over social policy, rather than resurrect the old fears of an Ontario-Quebec "axis."

Up to Quebec

Whether this was good or bad will now depend, of course, on events in Quebec up to June 28, the deadline for government approval of what was accomplished in Victoria. Mr. Bourassa was given precious little to take home to his cabinet and to Quebec opinion. Whether more Ontario support for his position, and understanding of his problem, might have got him more is now one of history's imponderables.

But Mr. Davis, clearly, was determined to think of other things. His eye was fixed on the money side of the constitution and all he seemed to be interested in was pressing on to that Valhalla of constitutional conferences, the redistribution of powers.

Ironically, he is not going to get there. The conference did agree there will be an early meeting on all aspects of federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, including tax reform, shared-cost programs, equalization payments to the poor provinces and tax sharing. But—and this is extremely important — it is not to be a constitutional conference. The redistribution of legislative powers is not to be discussed and it will not be the long-awaited crunch stage of the constitutional review.

In other words, there is to be (assuming acceptance on all sides of the Victoria package) a new Canadian constitution in which the core of the current constitution setting out the respective powers of the federal and provincial governments (sections 91 and 92 of the British North America Act) remains as alive, as divisive and as controversial as ever. Incredible as it sounds, this is the net position after three years of constitutional review.

Mr. Davis will surely have his political problems with this. For years the Ontario government, under both Robarts and Davis, has complained about the federal government's unlimited spending power, its ability to erode and interfere with provincial jurisdiction, and the lack of provincial financial capacity to meet provincial responsibilities. Many government statements may now be exhumed to show that to settle for no constitutional reform in these areas is a retreat of major proportions.

Escape Hatches

Mr. Davis, of course, will have his escape hatches. He will read the fine print in the government's pronouncements to point out that Ontario's complaints can be resolved as easily by tax reforms and inter-governmental agreements as by constitutional amendments. Indeed, he will no doubt claim — and with sincerity, since the Ontario government has never really been interested in constitutional solutions — that Ontario is closer to its objectives than ever before.

But what is good for the government of William Davis is not necessarily good for Canada, or even for Ontario. A federal-provincial tax deal, for example, which is forged by Ontario's undoubtedly strong bargaining position may not be fair to the rest of the country, which is another way of saying it may not be constitutionally sound. That, in fact, is what constitutions are for, to protect against ad hoc government agreements which may discriminate, and to ensure that there does exist "the best and most effective matching of revenues and responsibilities."

Mr. Davis now says in effect that it is not necessary and he is quite prepared — indeed, anxious — to have an election on it. There is not likely to be any Ontario legislative approval of the Victoria package until after the election, now expected in the fall. He will probably get no argument from the Liberals but it is hardly an issue the NDP can resist. The debate in Ontario is not over yet.

Looking Back

From the Times of June 22, 1911:

London — King George V, eighth of the House of Hanover, was today crowned King of the British Empire and given the public homage of his world-wide subjects. With his consort, Queen Mary, His Majesty was crowned in the Abbey of Westminster with all the rites and royal ceremonial prescribed by custom.

Outside, the usually dull streets had been transformed into a mass of colors. The King and Queen's progress to the Abbey and the route to Buckingham Palace was one of unbroken enthusiasm.

As the General Says, Morality Is Tricky Term

Maxwell Taylor

By NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN

Wouldn't you know it? They did it with lawyers, broke the first amendment, and poured the gore of flackery over the act of censoring the Times. That's what they are, an administration of lawyers, flacks and goo-jobbers, men who think statesmanship is the sharp practice of concealing razor blades in Halloween apples.

We thought that if it ever came, there'd be boots and crunching of glass. We thought so bad a crime, so awful a thing would have to be carried out in some appropriately crashing and overtly smashing way.

We anticipated storm troopers but we got lawyers, word mincers, thought grinders, guys in gabardine from the justice department, walking in creaking socks, who show by agate text that the greater is the lesser, that the first and most fundamental amendment is subordinate to Title 18, U.S. Code. Section 793. The Bill of Rights breached and bleeding by Section 793.

We assumed they'd go after the little papers first, the hippy underground papers, the angry magazines of small circulation, and then the middle-sized, outlying dailies. We thought they wouldn't dare go for the New York Times first. Lawyers would, and it's sound politically. If they get the Times, all the rest will fold, or will we? Wouldn't it be a glorious act of contempt and assertion of right if every paper in America printed the censored instalments tomorrow morning?

Imagine all the summons and writs they'd have to issue!

The first time in American history a newspaper's been censored . . . done in the name of security . . . so be grateful and don't complain. You have nine of the first ten amendments left and that should be enough for you in a time of high unemployment, inflation and serious troubles in the Middle East.

Done in the name of security. Not your security, not the nation's — there are no military secrets here but the security of the politicians, civilian and military, who traduced America, not to another nation but to pride.

For that's what they've got, a Coliolanus complex. Like Shakespeare's proud, Roman politician, they refuse to bend their knee to the popular will. They know better and they are better, and the Times caught them at it, these self-confessed liars, these tough deceivers, superior men of the Real Politik that would be too much for an ordinary American to keep on his stomach.

The Times, however, has nailed them, done it so thoroughly that these men who grant interviews like Popes grant audiences are having to come out and answer the hard questions. And my! When they do, how they substantiate everything that appeared in the Times before the censors got to the editor's desk.

Thus we saw a different Gen. Maxwell Taylor on CBS the other night. The same Taylor who was our ambassador to Saigon in 1964 and '65, who was Johnson's special adviser through the rest of his term, this well-tailored Taylor, so handsome and hawkishly gray, distinguished man, a fine soldier once, now compromised by his own words on the pages of the Times.

Bernard Kalb and John Hart interviewed him, but on television and words enter the brain so fast you can't be sure what you've heard. In print, even in excerpt form, they sink in.

Q: You would like to see the remaining documents in the hands of the New York Times not be published?'

A: I say this not because of what's in them . . . it's the principle of the thing, that we have here deliberate betrayal of government secrets, and I obviously have to be against that as a citizen.

Q: Well, what do you make, general, of the principle of the people's right to know when steps of this dimension are taken?

●

A: I don't believe in that as a general principle. You have to talk about cases. What is a citizen going to do after reading these documents that he wouldn't have done otherwise? A citizen should know those things he needs to know to be a good citizen and discharge his function . . .

Q: How do you assess the morality of the Johnson administration . . . leading the United States covertly into war?

A: Of course, when you get the word morality, or moral, that's a very tricky term. Do you mean that the intentions were immoral, that the execution was immoral, or that the consequences were immoral. You see, you open up a whole philodophical question.

Q: One columnist has assessed it in these terms. That in reading that report you get the sickening feeling of deception and betrayal. Now, do you accept that, reject it, or how would you comment on it?

●

A: Are they referring to the government or the people who published the papers?

Q: The reading of the Pentagon history, the reading of that tragedy, without being overtaken by that sickening feeling of deception and betrayal.

A: I wouldn't know, of course. If someone says that, that presumably is his subjective attitude . . . this is doing . . . three bad things: one, it's laying the foundation for bad history; secondly, it's initiating a practice of officials betraying their government secrets and a distinguished newspaper printing them; and third, it's ruinous to relations within our government and our international relations abroad . . .

Q: What do you think went wrong?

A: . . . I'm writing a book. I'm going to have a couple of misleading chapters on the subject . . .

●

Q: Could you very briefly, general, do a quick anthology of the right and wrong as you review them now?

A: One of the most serious wrongs . . . in my judgment was our connivance at the overthrow of President Diem, because, regardless of what you thought of President Diem, we had absolutely nothing but chaos which followed . . . (Diem, you will remember, was the chap who John Foster Dulles, Mike Mansfield and Cardinal Spellman set up in power. He ruled and looted South Vietnam with Dragon Lady, his wife, and his brother, Ngo Dinh Nuh, an opium junkie — shades of things to come. They were driven from power with the help of the CIA hence Taylor's reference to "our connivance.") . . . the place would have disintegrated had not President Johnson made his two, very tough, courageous decisions to go ahead . . . so that's a case of one place I thought we were very badly wrong and secondly, one place where I think we were right.

Q: General . . . in retrospect, was it worth it?

A: It certainly has been a very heavy price to pay in many ways . . . the saddest things . . . are the indications of apparently fundamental weaknesses within the United States. It could just be that this price is worth paying to discover our weaknesses in time to correct them before we're faced with a major crisis.

●

Q: What weaknesses?

A: Division in the minorities, loss of patriotism, degradation and defamation of all the virtues which made us a great country in the past, the use of our own media to destroy us internally . . .

There you have Taylor, doubtless courageous, having served better in better wars, by his obsolete lights a good man, oblivious to his racism, still bemoaning the loss of order conferred on a helpless South Vietnam by two tyrannical brothers, one a madman, the other a dope addict. And there you have Nixon and Mitchell doing violence to the Bill of Rights to protect him.

A smart politician would flee this whole crew exposed by the Times, yet Nixon-Mitchell-Agnew don't. They don't because they need them. They need them to defend the continuance of Johnson's foreign policy, they need them to run up to the Senate every time Mansfield wants to bring the boys back home from Europe, every time there is a new and preposterous request for 10 more atomic aircraft carriers, 40 more submarines, for money for rockets, the Penn Central or Lockheed. He can count on Taylor to play the old general role once more and pull the con about paramount national necessity.

●

Once they had everybody believing it. Once, just before the Bay of Pigs, they got the New York Times, which had the story of the upcoming invasion to kill it. If that story had run, there might not have been a Bay of Pigs, and the Times learned from that; it learned that he who serves truth serves his country. But Taylor, he learned nothing, nor did Nixon, nor any of them . . . nothing, nothing, nothing.

Equity Reform Is Lost In Budget of Mirrors

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — Pierre Trudeau always told us that his political timetable was to run for re-election in his fourth year of power, which began this week — and now we'd better believe him.

The twin-pack of budget and tax reforms delivered to the country was designed to please almost every voter, from the poorest pensioner to the richest plutocrat.

Probably the only Canadians who will not be grateful are the unworldly theorists who had hoped for radical reform of the tax system and those querulous critics who will ask if the current concessions could not have been made years ago.

Finance Minister Benson, whose reputation as the cold-hearted scourge of the unemployed nas made him a political liability in the cabinet, should now be able to return to his earlier image as genial old Uncle Ben with a kindly smile behind the homely pipe.

The prime minister for his part has fully redeemed his recent pledge to the Canadian manufacturers that they had nothing to fear from his government. He is revealed now as the friend of the businessman (big and small divisions) and the defender of the free enterprise economy.

He is clearly not at all the sinister socialist who consorts with the Kremlin and gathers suspect Marxists around him, to the alarm of Paul Hellyer and the John Birch Society.

As one of the cynical men from the finance department remarked, there should be celebration bonfires in Bay Street and dancing in the mansions of the country.

But Trudeau and Benson can also claim to be patrons of the workers, from the middle class suburbanites worrying about taxes on salaries and curbs on expense account living to the man on the production line who wants a little more in the pay packet to take home to his working wife.

They appear now in fact as social reformers who can be most things to most people.

It's a remarkable trick, and as one reads through the mass of documents published Friday night it is hard to see how it is done.

Benson's double-length budget speech recited one goodie after another. The specimen tax tables seem all to point the same way — down. The new red book on tax reform shows how much better off we are going to be in 1972 than we are now under the present system, or would have been under the original Benson white paper, the Senate plan or the proposals of those Commons committees. All the benefits are presumably implemented in the 597 pages of legislation to amend the Income Tax Act and other laws—although we'll have to wait for eagle-eye scrutiny by the tax lawyers and parliamentary critics.

But government, not even Trudeau-Benson government, cannot be this good. So where are the mirrors?

Mostly it seems to be the old illusion of banging us on the head until we feel terrible and then kindly stopping so that the relief is marvellous.

Take tax reform. The 1969 white paper scared businessmen and most of the middle-class half to death.

It threatened a swinging capital gains tax, steeper rates on middle incomes, levies on the money a man hopes to make when he sells his house or cashes in the family heirlooms, a new bite on the big resource developers and such new-fangled ideas as integrating corporate and personal income for tax purposes.

The Benson plan stirred ferocious opposition and when he invited the public to participate in democratic discussion, the whole nation joined in — or at least every section of the nation which could hire a tax lawyer, twist the arm of an MP or put a lobbyist on retainer.

Now comes that wonderful feeling of relief. All the really nasty and controversial ideas are scrapped in the new plan.

We are left with the substantial fringe benefits of lower taxes for the poor, allowances for working mothers, relief for the working man's trade expenses and such like — worth in all some $300-million a year.

What has been lost, of course, is almost the last trace of the brand new system proposed in the name of equity by the Carter Royal Commission, which was set up in 1962 to take a long, radical look at the tax jungle which almost everyone then regarded as intolerable.

Now we have a modernized jungle incorporating some worthwhile reforms which might have been made years ago in the regular budget process if we had not become involved in the plan for wholesale reform.

That's the first illusion. Now look at the budget. It's sunshine all the way from the new-model Benson.

Income tax is eliminated for 750,000 people at the bottom of the prosperity league. The three per cent surtax is removed from the middle income earners and corporations. Sales tax is removed from margarine to please the careful housewife, and reduced on hi-fis for the kids and color TV for father.

It's wonderful, but why was it not done last year?

The opposition parties, many economists and most businessmen begged Benson to cut taxes so as to stimulate the economy and mitigate the hardship of unemployment.

The government could not afford it then; now, just when it says the economy is expanding fast, the cash is found. After the winter of discontent, we are promised a summer and new year of prosperity.

So that's how the trick is done. Threats are not fulfilled, and we are expected to be thankful.

The next illusion is already announced. Trudeau and Benson are going to rescue us from the unemployment they created last year.

Onward to the fourth year. It promises to be pleasant.

SOCRED DOUBLE STANDARD

THE PROVINCE
An Editorial

In seeking the fullest disclosure of B.C. Tel's dealings with associated companies the B.C. government was hardly being consistent with the rate setting behavior of its own public monopolies — B.C. Hydro and the B.C. Liquor Control Board.

Many British Columbians must be struck by the anomaly between the government's position and the one it adopts towards public monopoly in two other basic public services — the sale of electricity and alcoholic beverages.

B.C. Hydro's 15 per cent rate increase on April 1, 1970, was announced almost casually by Hydro Chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum to a joint Rotary-Kiwanis meeting three months before the increase became effective. "If I had my way," he added, "rates would double."

When there was a demand for a review of the proposed increases either by the Public Utilities Commission or a legislative committee, Lands and Forest Minister Williston and Recreation and Conservation Minister Kiernan replied that the need for increases in electricity rates and bus fares was clear from Hydro statements and that such a review would serve no useful purpose.

The rates of course, were discussed in the legislature but there were more politics than a careful and objective examination of rate-making factors such as now being made by the Canadian Transport Commission into phone costs.

Politics, too, obscured a situation that should have had the fullest exploration because Premier Bennett has used Hydro as an instrument of provincial economic policy as well as a purveyor of electricity.

The recent hike in liquor prices was a flagrant example of arbitrary commodity pricing by a public monopoly that sent new price lists to the liquor stores without any formal announcement. Then it was explained that the changes weren't really price increases but a new method of setting retail prices.

From now on each classification of liquor will have its own standard mark-up, which will apply automatically to the wholesale price. The latest revaluation of spirits will send millions more into the provincial treasury.

These make an interesting comparison in rate-raising techniques. Publicly-owned monopolies seem subject to little or no public restraints while private monopolies are still very much under public scrutiny. It's something to remember.

Where's the Revolution?

By RUSSELL BAKER

Hearn's day began to turn dark when he saw the headline in the morning paper that said "Coming Revolution In TV Cassettes."

It reminded him why he had gone to sleep depressed the night before. It was because he had been reading the report of the White House Conference on Youth, which began, "We are in the midst of a political, social and cultural revolution."

"Who is in the midst of a political, social and cultural revolution?" Hearn had asked himself silently.

★ ★ ★

The "we" mentioned in the report of the White House conference on youth certainly did not include him. In Hearn's world there was no political revolution. His was the world which always had been and always would be dominated politically by stable, cool, businesslike men named Johnson, Nixon, Humphrey and good old Ike, with the usual sprinkling of Kennedys.

Peace and rising prices — that was the politics of the world Hearn inhabited How dim a bulb he must be, Hearn had thought the night before, and thought again now.

In Hearn's world there was no social revolution, unless you could characterize the general spread of bad manners as revolutionary. For the rest, the world that Hearn inhabited socially was still the same old place. He associated it with celery stuffed with cheese and women in long pants.

The cultural revolution, too, had pointedly snubbed Hearn. The cultural revolution, he supposed, meant reading Marshal McLuhan and putting Mick Jagger posters on the wall of the den and not calling it a den anymore, but putting a mattress on the floor and calling it a pad.

Hearn, who had always disliked dens, had, in fact, once put a mattress on the floor and suggested that Mrs. Hearn invite some neighbors to come sit on it and eat celery stuffed with cheese.

"Don't be a silly ass," Mrs. Hearn suggested.

Hearn did not quarrel, for he knew too well that he was buffoonery-prone. And yet, he was gnawed at secretly by hateful despairs.

To live in an age when revolution was everywhere and never to taste it — that was the leaden burden which Hearn sensed himself dragging toward the ultimate abyss.

He went to the office brooding upon "Coming Revolution in TV Cassettes," knowing for a certainty that he would never be part of that revolution. He had missed the revolution in sound by buying a cabinet stereo set when the revolution was raging in components.

★ ★ ★

The revolution in music, the revolution in movies, and the revolution in children's books had all passed him by and entered their reactionary phases by the time Hearn had bought his first Beatles record and seen his first Scandinavian blue movie.

At the office they were sympathetic. The receptionist was solicitous in her regular daily inquiry, "Have you missed any good revolutions today, Mr. Hearn?" Hearn always answered with a sad smile.

Today he raised the subject at lunch with his colleagues, who were bored with it. He asked if any of them was yet involved in the coming revolution in TV cassettes. What he actually wanted to ask, of course, and did not ask, because he did not dare expose his innocence, was, "Is the sex revolution still going on and, if so, where?"

It was the scandal of the office that Hearn was not even a mild combatant in the sex revolution or even in the whole revolution in morals.

He was mildly affected, of course, by the race revolution, the revolution in education, the revolution in eating, the revolution in house paint, the revolution in humor, the revolution in college lacrosse, and the revolution in bathroom decor, but he had no sense at all of participation. And now, sitting with his colleagues, who were enjoying the revolutions in both hot pastrami and beer while he lunched on the same old bologna, American cheese and coffee, Hearn was aware that they were embarrassed by him.

This, he realized, after comparing their clothes with his, was because he had not been caught up in the revolution in men's fashion. Had be been younger, Hearn might have wept, for he was a badly breaking man.

That night, on the telephone, he ordered the first TV cassette in his neighborhood, then put on his red tie with hammer and sickle and came downstairs to boast about it. His children immediately accused him of reactionary materialism, chauvinism and Mrs. Hearn wept, for she had invited several neighbors to come by for celery stuffed with cheese and knew that Hearn's quaint old hammer-and-sickle necktie would set the whole neighborhood laughing about the Hearns' not being able to keep up with revolutions.

Steam generating equipment, spares and related services are included in the sale for development of a 350 megawatt thermal generating station to double output of La Coruna power station.

The work will mean about 100,000 man hours of employment for CES plant at Sherbrooke and for subsuppliers in the Montreal area.

BACM

BACM Industries Ltd. has concluded negotiations leading to the acquisition later this year of Sun Gold Investments Ltd. and Borger Construction Ltd., both of Calgary.

BACM is a subsidiary of Genstar Ltd., a Canadian public corporation.

Included in the transaction will be controlling interest in Kelwood Corp. Ltd., a major Calgary land developer, and a house builder through its subsidiary, Keith Construction Co. Ltd.

BACM sales, during its last fiscal year, were about $100 million, Genstar sales, including those of BACM, were $204 million in 1970.

Change of ownership in the equity of Millhaven Fibres Ltd. has been agreed upon by Canadian Industries Ltd. and Chemcell Ltd.

The latter, with 40 per cent, will buy from CIL another 10 per cent of the stock, while Fiber Industries Inc., of Charlotte, N..C, will purchase the remaining 50 per cent.

Fiber Industries is owned by Celanese Corp. and Imperial Chemical Industries Ltd.

The agreement also covers acquisition by Chemcell of CIL's half-interest in Cel-Cil Fibres Ltd., a firm set up to market production of Millhaven and Chemcell.

Maple Leaf

New opportunities to improve potential in growth and rate of return are sought by Maple Leaf Mills Ltd., which is still open to question on the matter of control.

New product lines and acquisitions are being considered by management, shareholders were told.

Efforts are still being made to unwind an arrangement in which Neonex (with 14 per cent interest) was to gain control with 67 per cent of stock.

Marshall

Diamond drilling of its Nitinat copper claims is planned for late this summer, reports Marshall Creek Copper Co. Ltd., which has line-cutting and geochemical survey in progress.

About $50,000-$60,000 will be spent this season, said president Jim McNulty, of Glen Lake. There are 60 claims on the property, through which B.C. Forest Products is driving a main haulage road. Some 35 miles of line-cutting and soil sampling has been undertaken.

Up to $60 milion is expected to be allocated for property development and new plant, including a doubling of size for its Rainbow Lake oil refinery.

Its gas processing plant at Ram River also will be developed with a second stage addition.

Chartered Banks Loosening Their Loaning Activities

OTTAWA (CP) — Outstanding consumer credit rose by more than $110 million in April with the chartered banks loosening their loaning activities to the tune of $81 million, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

Consumer credit outstanding at the end of the month totalled $8,876 million for the retailers, banks, and other organizations that report their figures to the bureau every month. Another $2,000 million or more was owing to other retail dealers, credit unions, and the oil companies for their credit card accounts.

The grand total of consumer credit outstanding at the end of March was $10,864 million. This was up modestly from $10,503 million a year earlier but below the peak $11,073 recovered last September.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said in the background papers to his budget last week that consumer credit has been down, in relation to personal incomes, and that more consumer expenditure from bank balances and available credit could be an important spark in economic growth.

Reporting advance figures for April, subject to revision when more detail is available, the bureau reported that personal loans by the chartered banks rose to $4,871 million at the end of April from $4,790 million a month earlier. At the end of April last year they totalled $4,203 million.

Small cash loans by the sales finance and consumer loan companies continued to run slowly, probably showing resistance to high interest rates. They totalled $482 million outstanding at the end of April, compared with $565 million a year earlier.

Tax Reforms to Boost Stock Market Recovery

By IRVING C. WHYNOT

TORONTO (CP) — The initial reaction from investment houses to last week's federal budget and tax reform measures is one of cautious confidence it will lead to a measure of stock market recovery.

There is general agreement that a prime boost will be given by ending the period of uncertainty which has hung over the market while the government formulated its tax policies.

This alone, they argue, should restore a degree of investor confidence and lead to a moderately bullish market for the remainder of this year and into 1972.

There is some disagreement on the extent of the stock market reaction and the timing.

Here is a summary of some of the early comment:

Merill Lynch, Pierce Fenner and Smith Inc.: It seems reasonable that the expansionary nature of the budget and tax changes will have a favorable influence on the Canadian economy.

These measures should stimulate consumers and provide a basis for a positive departure from the hesitant performance of the economy and stock markets.

The near- to intermediate-term prospects for Canadian stock markets have improved as a result of the budget moves.

Of over-riding significance the removal of the uncertainties that have hung over investors' decisions and activities for almost two years and the realization that the tax-reform achievements have fallen markedly short of original aspirations.

For the longer term, the built-in reductions in corporate tax rates will be an the markets.
important positive factor for the markets.

Richardson Securities of Canada: The tax legislation provides a much better atmosphere for the private sector than did the white paper proposals and should lead to continued economic growth.

The budget proposals are obviously expansionary but the impact of this stimulus is likely to be concentrated in 1972 with the combined effects of the budget and tax legislation leading to rapid growth throughout 1972 and 1973.

However, the rapid growth will likely be accompanied by a rising rate of inflation and rising interest rates, which will require corrective action in 1973-74.

Burns Bros. and Denton Ltd.: Changes in fiscal policy are modestly bullish for the bond market.

The economy has been massively stimulated on the monetary fronts for many months and will obviously benefit from the moderately expansionary budgetary measures which should lead to vigorous economic growth in the last half of this year and into 1972.

The prospect of a more favorable economic environment, easing credit conditions and removal of uncertainties surrounding tax reform should substantially improve investor confidence.

Mills, Spence and Co. Ltd.: Caution is suggested in adjusting securities portfolios in the light of new tax legislation.

The tax legislation will produce higher taxes in oil, mines and steels over the long term but the impact on stocks in these areas will not be immediate. Real estate will feel the impact sooner. For bonds, the tax-reform package is less punitive than the white paper on taxation in that the bias to equities is reduced.

The budget will have a fairly narrow impact on stocks with strength centred in merchandising and consumer durables. The impact of the budget on the bond market is likely to be a trend to higher rates as the fiscal stimulus increases business requirements.

Investors are cautioned not to make decisions on the basis of the budget and tax legislation alone. The over-riding factors are economic and earnings trends as they are shaped by government, business, and the consumer.

For the individual investor there appears to be no obvious factors that would cause major alterations in the general patterns of investment approach that already exist.

Big Nickel Discovery

JAKARTA (Reuter) — A Canadian-owned company has found significant nickel deposits in the Celebes, the mining ministry announced here today.

International Nickel Indonesia, a wholly-owned subsidiary of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., had discovered the deposits in the Soreake area after extensive drilling operations, the announcement said.

The company has estimated the Soreake deposits could yield 50 million pounds of nickel a year. It hopes to begin production in the next four years, the ministry said.

A preliminary estimate indicated that the costs could reach $200 million, of which $15 million had been allocated for exploration and development activities this year, a ministry spokesman said.

Insurance Firm To Reduce Staff

WINNIPEG (CP) — The General Accident Assurance Co. of Canada has announced plans to reduce its operations in Manitoba, because of the provincial government's entry into the auto insurance field.

The firm said there will be a substantial reduction in the number of people employed at its provincial head office in Winnipeg. Only a small service staff would be left behind. The firm has 35 Manitoba employees.

Government auto insurance is to become available Nov. 1

NEW PLANKING

Inferior Grades Of Wood Used

Super-thick wood veneer forming strong planks may soon be an alternative to conventional sawn lumber in B.C. and a major saving for the housing industy.

Researchers at the federal fishery and forestry department's Western Forest Products Laboratory in Vancouver have produced the new lumber from inferior grades of wood, mainly fir.

Laboratory director R. E. Foster said several forestry firms are interested in the development, which will not only use logs that might otherwise go for pulp, but result in less mill waste such as sawdust, and produce a plank of greater strength.

TESTING

Several meetings have been held with companies representing the forest industry and an arrangement is being worked out to do production-scale testing and market analysis.

Foster said work has been carried on in the federal laboratory for about 18 months and is hopeful that an acceptable product can be offered within five years.

"There doesn't seem any doubt that we can use relatively low grade logs to produce material of equal strength to that of better grade material," he said.

The veneer made from lower grade logs is mainly ⅛ on an inch thick. Its long-fibre edges are glued up to form continuous sheets of veneer which are then glued in multilayers up to two inches with staggered edges where sections have been joined.

Unlike conventional plywood, the new material's fibres run parallel, so that in its finished form its resemblance to conventional milled lumber is close.

Two-by-six and two-by-four stock has been turned out successfully from the lab's machinery, which is of somewhat smaller capacity than that of industry.

LESS WASTE

Although studies have yet to prove the economy, the Canadian forestry service said in a recent bulletin: "This product has potential for use as structural elements of high strength qualities in structural light framing at costs which may be competitive with sawn lumber."

"A social and economic benefit is obtained in that up to 50 per cent more lumber is extracted from a log, thus conserving valuable timber resources. As very little sawdust is produced, pollution is abated where sawdust is a disposal problem," the bulletin added.

U.S. Exchange Makes Changes

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Stock Exchange has announced a major restructuring of its administrative organization, with the goal of being more responsive to investor and member company needs.

It said it established three major divisions — one for operations, one for regulatory activities, and one for marketing. The exchange's present 13 divisions and 32 departments will be consolidated into one of these three divisions, the Amex said.

Amex president Paul Kolton said the new arrangement was aimed to meet changing conditions within the exchange community and the securities industry.

BILL WALKER

Penny May was back in town on Monday, and if not exactly the fastest girl in the country, at least one of the two most famous in the world of track at the moment. Besides, she is a much happier girl than she was one memorable night last November.

Penny, 19, had gone east last week looking primarily for a berth on the Pan-American Games track team in the pentathlon event. She earned it easily, but also in spectacular fashion. She had five personal bests in the five events of the competition which made her "so very happy," and doubtless "I will never forget the day."

But then, of course, neither will another outstanding teenager. For 18-year old Debbie Van Kiekebelt of Clarkson, Ont., it just had to be more exciting. Because after all she did finish ahead of Penny.

And if they are the spanking new personalities of a new dimension in North American track, they deserve that signal honor indeed.

Almost incredibly, they both finished with more than 5,000 points, which is the barrier that no longer is insurmountable. Miss Van Kiekebelt had 5,052 points, Miss May 5,011 as they broke through that standard of excellence. Two Canadians in a magnificent double. And the enormity of their efforts can be more fully understood by the fact that in all of track history no more than five women before them had ever achieved this result. None ever in the Americas.

Actually a third entrant, Jenny Meldrum of Toronto, wasn't outclassed either. She had 4,860 points, her personal high. It was that kind of a wondrous competition.

●

If the mass of points sounds complicated, perhaps it can best be best explained that the better the performance, the higher the point totals. For example, a half an inch higher in the jump would have been worth 100 more points to Penny, the same as it would for the others.

Still, if their performance can be likened to the breaking of the four-minute mile for men, in Penny's particular case, there are now some excellent reasons why she should be seriously eyeing an Olympic berth at Munich next year.

For in two of her individual events, the hurdles, and the long jump, she equalled and bettered the Olympic qualifying standards. Her pentathlon total, and naturally that of Miss Van Keikebelt, and also Mrs. Meldrum's, were all above the Olympic rating too. And they say in the TV ad "that's performance."

But there is another plus that may help Penny in her quest at an obvious goal — a Pan-Am and-or an Olympic medal. Her high jump of 5' 2½" was her best ever, and if the question follows: Can she do better?, the answer is an unqualified "yes." Because right now she is not fully accustomed to her new jumping style.

It is a la Debbie Brill, the Canadian champion, she explained," and I haven't really learned it all yet. "I have only just got the run-up," she added. "Now I have to get my knee up. It's all new to me and there is still so much to learn."

Regarding the other events, she feels she can do even better there as well. "I ran the first part of the race very badly," she said of the hurdles, where she nevertheless set a Canadian record of 13.5 seconds. "Only over the last five or six did I have my proper rythm. In the long jump as well, she thinks she can add a few inches to er 21'2" mark, while in the 200 metres, "with a little more work, I can improve that time."

●

In a nice touch of praise, Penny gave coach Lionel Pugh full marks for her successes. And if some of it is a state of mind, that's because of Lionel's idea of "super-positive thinking," she said. "He has helped me tremendously."

But if she feels that the sky may be the limit now and that any future competition with Miss Van Kiekebelt will be "awfully close," it wasn't always that bright on the horizon. Not one unforgettable night last November.

It was after a practice session, that's road work, and the gang wanted some hot chocolate. A usual routine. But there wasn't any at the May place. So a detail quickly went out to get it — in Penny's little car.

En route home, Penny's car chucked it, and refused to run. It was pushed aside, and off the pavement. Meanwhile, another car, with the driver's visibility obviously hampered by the frosty conditions, came around the corner and knocked the May group flying.

Penny was pinned against her car, which was crumpled, and when she was hospitalized, she feared the worst.

" 'You'll never run again'," one doctor told me," she said. "But my doctor said I would, and I believed him."

The injuries weren't as serious as first believed and besides, because of the setback, Penny began to generate a brand new desire within herself. After a week on crutches, and another on the limp, she was back in training and finally, working harder than ever before.

On Sunday, it was all worth it. On Monday she was back at practice.

More road work? Heavens, no! She was out playing softball.

Shooting Practice Gets Rocks Ready

If the way the team looks in practice is any indication of its performance in games, Victoria Shamrocks may be a force to be reckoned with Wednesday night against Coquitlam Adanacs.

Shamrocks, currently in second place in the Western Lacrosse Association, are only two points ahead of the third-place Adanacs, but have a game in hand.

After Wednesday's game at 8:00 at Memorial Arena, the two teams meet Saturday in the concluding part of a home-and-home series which could determine who challenges defending champion New Westminster Salmonbellies for the league title.

Shamrock co-coach Ron Jay feels his charges are ready for the Adanacs, but still put the team through two shooting practices Sunday and Monday.

"They look good," Jay said. "I think we'll be all right against the Adanacs."

A's Opponents Blue Over Vida's Pitching

By the Associated Press

Vida Blue is going for a 30-game season, but he's not really counting.

The sensational Oakland left-hander won his 15th game of the season Monday night, setting down Minnesota Twins 3-2 with a 13-strikeout performance that increased the Athletics' American League West lead to eight games over second-place Kansas City Royals, who lost 5-1 to Chicago White Sox.

Elsewhere Monday night, Baltimore Orioles ripped Washington Senators 7-2 and Milwaukee Brewers nipped California Angels 3-2 in 10 innings. Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians were rained out and the other teams were not scheduled.

In the National League, Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell belted his 25th home run of the season as the Pirates downed New York Mets 6-0. The win moved Pittsburgh 4½ games in front of the Mets in the National League East division.

In other games, rookie Bobby O'Brien outpitched returning veteran Bob Gibson as Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 4-0, Philadelphia Phillies topped Cincinnati Reds 5-3 in 12 innings and Atlanta Braves split a doubleheader with Montreal Expos, winning 6-4 before a 5-3 loss.

LEADS MAJORS

Blue's workmanlike job on the Twins moved him halfway to 30 victories, a fact that doesn't impress the cool youngster.

"At the end of the season, "we'll see what I've got," he said. "Whatever it is, I'll be satisfied."

What Blue has right now is a major-league-leading 146 strikeouts, 15 complete games in 19 starts and a 15-2 record. He allowed just seven hits against Minnesota, but only one after the fifth inning.

The Twins nicked Oakland's ace for three hits and both their runs in the third inning, giving rookie Ray Corbin a 2-1 lead. The Athletics tied it on Mike Epstein's double and singles by Sal Bando and Dave Duncan in the sixth and then scored the deciding run in the seventh when Minnesota catcher George Mitterwald threw wild on a delayed double steal.

The last man to win 30 games was Denny McLain in 1968 and the controversial right-hander could reach 30 again this season, but on the wrong side of the ledger.

Washington's McLain lost his eighth straight and 13th in 17 decisions as Baltimore belted him for 16 hits.

FOOTBALL CAMPS IN FULL SWING

Times News Services

Yes, Virginia, football time is here again, as Canadian Football League teams opened their training camps at the weekend, with a few problems.

A minor revolt in the Ottawa Rough Riders camp could mean a pair of key Canadian linemen won't be in Ottawa uniforms this season. Doug Specht and Doug Collins have decided not to take part in daily workouts until they have signed contracts with the Riders. The team management said Monday both players would be suspended if they did not start attending practises on a regular basis.

In Hamilton, where the Tiger-Cats were opening their camp, coach Al Dorow was a little steamed up over the absence of halback Ollie Carson, who had assured him by telephone he would arrive in time for the camp.

Also, rookie Peter Bender from McGill University absorbed a few heated words from Ti-Cat newcomer Bill Byrd of New Mexico State.

Fun-Loving Lee No Quitter Now

Nicklaus Flubs Shots in Traps, Loses by Three

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Lee Trevino, who until a month ago considered himself a give-up artist, won the 71st annual U.S. Open golf championship Monday by beating Jack Nicklaus, the man many rate the best golfer in the world.

The 31-year-old Trevino, Mexican-American grandson of a Dallas gravedigger, was one over par on the first hole at Merion Golf Club and then went on to shoot a two-under-par 68 for a three-stroke victory over the favored Nicklaus.

It was the second U.S. Open title for Trevino, who won in 1968 with a record-equalling 72-hole total of 275. Both he and Nicklaus shot par 280s over Merion's short but tough course to force the 25th Open playoff.

Nicklaus, in his bid for a third Open title, left two shots in the sand and they were disastrous.

"I just made a bad swing on two, and on three I tried to get under the ball and didn't hit it hard," said a dejected Nicklaus.

NEVER TRAILS

The missed sand shots gave the steady-playing Trevino a two-shot lead and he never trailed. The victory was worth $30,000 to the fun-loving Trevino, who vaulted over Nicklaus ($161,213) into first place on the money-winning list with $165,000.

Trevino said this second Open title was more satisfying to him, even though that initial one took him from relative obscurity as a pro to a golfer who had to be reckoned with. He used a comment by former golfing great Walter Hagen to make this point.

"Hagen said that anyone can win one U.S. Open, but it takes a great golfer to win two."

It was Trevino who referred to himself as a give-up artist. He described himself as a guy who tried to miss the cut when he got two or three over par in a tournament. He said he came to his senses last month in a tournament in Houston.

"It just so happened that in Houston after 36 holes, Hubert Green was leading. If I'm not mistaken, he was five under par and I was six over par for the tournament. With 18 holes to go I was tied for the lead. I had made up 11 shots on the field.

"And right then I knew and I said to myself, 'You should never give up in this game because you never know what is going to happen in the remaining four or five holes to anyone.' So, I just keep plugging."

HE GETS BETTER

"He's getting better and better every time out," said Nicklaus of Trevino. "And he's going to continue to get better with experience."

Although the same age as Trevino, Nicklaus has been playing tournament golf since he was 18 while the new Open champ has been on the PGA tour only about four or five years.

Nicklaus suggests the new champ will have to start pacing himself, just as he's had to in recent years.

"I just can't play as many tournaments now as I once could. I can't keep up the interest.

"But Lee's like a kid just out of college, 26 or 27 years old, a few years on the tour and it's go, go, go."

The National Open was only the 11th tournament this season for Nicklaus, the current PGA and British Open champion. It was the 20th for Trevino, who was headed for Cleveland today to compete in the Cleveland Open. He's also scheduled to play in the Canadian Open next week and then the British Open.

Last-place Royal Colwood came up with its most impressive performance in the five-round competition Monday with a 7-2 victory over visiting Cedar Hill.

Keith Burrell led the Uplands' triumph, shooting an approximate three-over-par 75 to defeat Shawn Walton, 3 and 1. Burrell and Tad McDiarmid, who downed Don Gowan 6 and 5, won their four-ball tussle, 2 and 1.

Bate Bats Erupt To Back Larson

Bates Construction unlimbered their big bats Monday.

The Major Men's Softball League leaders, who sliced it thin with a pair of 1-0 victories in their previous starts, punched out 11 hits to coast to a 5-0 triumph over Strathcona Hotel at Central Park.

Winning pitcher Ken Larson ignited a four-run outburst in the seventh inning with a two-run double. A two-run homer by outfielder Ken Bate capped the big inning.

FOURTH VICTORY

Joe Patterson, Harvey Stevenson and catcher Bill James each banged out a pair of hits for the winners.

Larson, winning his fourth fame in five decisions, allowed only two hits — a single by Steve Bishop and a double by Roy St. Denis.

Off the field, league officials announced the Strathcona team will host a six-team, double-knockout tournament Saturday and Sunday.

Joining Strathcona, Bates and Seaboard of the host league will be Bell's Men's Wear of the Stuffy McGinnis League, Nanaimo Tally-Ho and CB Hawks of Seattle.

Dale Shaw Holds Second In Golf Test

VANCOUVER — Victoria women's golf champion Dale Shaw held on to her number two position in the competition to select members to the B.C. team for the Canadian championships in August.

Miss Shaw fired rounds of 81 and 84 Saturday and Sunday on the mainland to bring her score for four rounds to 328.

She trails leader Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver's Marine Drive by 22 strokes and is seven strokes up on Mrs. J. K. Larsen of Point Grey.

Four women will be selected to the team, with the last two rounds of the competition scheduled for Kamloops next month. Defending B.C. Ladies Close champion Gail Harvey Moore is the only one assured of a berth on the team.

ONLY B.C.H.A. APPROVAL NEEDED

BISHOP SEES NO PROBLEMS

The Cougars Are 'In'—Well Almost!

(Special to the Times)

SASKATOON — Only one item of business remains to be completed before Victoria Cougars, Vancouver Nats and New Westminster Royals are officially sealed as the Western Canada Hockey League's West Coast family.

Provisional entry was announced here Monday as the league opened its annual meeting.

The only roadblock standing between the teams and final approval is clearance by the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association.

"We're in," said Victoria general manager Eric Bishop, "if we get BCAHA clearance."

Bishop doesn't think BCAHA approval presents a serious problem, contrary to weekend reports that suggested the provincial association may block WCHL expansion to the coast.

"As of the moment," said Bishop late Monday, "none of us has been able to contact the B.C. president, Milo Fabro. I don't think they would block us.

"As far as I can gather, the BCAHA just wants us to do this thing properly ... through their offices. We intend to register our players through their offices, and so forth.

"Really, I don't think there is a problem except of communication. None of the clubs concerned or the league have got together with the BCAHA."

Transfer of the Estevan franchise to New Westminster and the addition of Victoria and Vancouver would give the league 12 teams.

Bishop indicated he was more concerned with league matters than he was with BCAHA clearance. The Cougars' manager and vice-president Jim Seymour weren't invited into Monday's sessions.

"There are things that we have to iron out ... such as player assistance, development money and so on. I can't get an answer until we get into the 'inner sanctum.' But I want to start ironing things out now, and not at 4 p.m. Wednesday (when the meeting ends)."

The league accepted the resignation of president Ron Butlin Monday and spent five hours discussing a new constitution.

Ben Haskin of Winnipeg, chairman of the board of governors, chaired the meeting.

Al Leader, former president of the Western (pro) League, was hinted as a possible successor to Butlin. The name of George Agar of Saskatoon also cropped up.

Butlin was obviously disappointed that he did not receive a vote of confidence from league officials.

Seattle Netter Sticks To Giant-Killer's Role

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — Tom Gorman, an American from Seattle who thrives in a giant-killing role, became the first player to oust a seeded contestant from this year's All-England tennis championships. His victim, in Monday's first round, was Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Gorman, 25, outlasted the eighth-seeded Drysdale 2-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Only last Thursday Gorman had knocked Rod Laver of Australia out of the tuneup, grass-court championships at Queen's Club.

* * *

The top six seeds all were victorious, paced by the Australian trio of Laver, defending champion John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall.

Laver, four time Wimbledon champion and seeded No. 1, routed fellow-Australian Bob Howe, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1.

Newcombe, No. 2 despite his victory last year, disposed of Bob Hewitt of South Africa 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 in the centre-court opener.

Rosewall, No. 3, downed Patrick Hombergen of Belgium 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

Despite gloomy weather and adverse forecasts, 22,000 turned out to watch the first-day program of men's singles matches, played on 14 grass courts which had been covered during recent downpours. Women's singles play begins today.

Gorman, unseeded here and ranked only 14th in the United States, survived a match point in the fifth set to beat Drysdale in a war of attrition. He also beat the big South African last year at Wimbledon, in a third-round clash. Drysdale, who was seeded 12th last year, went down that time in straight sets.

Three Americans rated well above Gorman won their matches.

Stan Smith, seeded fourth here and fresh from beating Newcombe Saturday in the final of the Queen's Club tournament, downed Michel Le Clercq of France 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

* * *

Arthur Ashe, No. 5 here, rallied to beat Erik Van Dillen, also an American, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5, and Cliff Richey, No. 6, knocked out Dick Crealy of Australia 6-3, 9-7, 2-6, 6-3.

Eight matches were left unfinished or failed to get on the courts as chill and dusk descended. Among the unfinished matches was one between Ilie Nastase of Romania, No. 7 seed, and Ray Keldie of Australia.

The new rules for tie-breaking were put to use on opening day. The first-ever Wimbledon tie-breaker was used by Ion Tiriac, and experienced Romanian, to defeat Anard Amritraj, a 19-year-old Indian newcomer, 9-8, 6-3, 6-1.

The 12point tiebreaker, in which the players alternate at serving, goes into effect when the score is 8-8 in any but the fifth set of a men's match. The objective is to avoid marathon contests.

Tiriac outscored Amritraj 7-5 in the 12-pointer to win the first set.

* * *

Charlie Pasarell, a Davis Cup player from Puerto Rico, also won a tie-breaker in downing Tony Roche of Australia, the 1968 finalist, 9-7, 4-6, 8-6, 9-8. This was the first centrecourt match in which the tie-breaker was used.

Among British winners Monday were Graham Stilwell and John Paish. Mark Cox of Britain was ousted by Ian Fletcher of Australia.

Other Australians, who advanced were Phil Dent, John Alexander and Ray Ruffels. Frew McMillan of South Africa won his match with Toshiro Sakai of Japan.

HOCKEY CLUB'S SHARES BACK ON THE MARKET

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trading in shares of Northwest Sports Enterprises, owners of the Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, resumed Monday on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, with the price rising $1.25 to $7.75.

Shares were trading at $6.50 June 11 when the exchange announced a halt-trading order after four Canadian directors of the company said they would resign because $3,500,000 in Northwest funds had been transferred to the United States by Medicor, major shareholder in Northwest Sports.

The order was in force all last week while Minneapolis-based Medicore tried to raise $3,500,000 with which to redeem its shares, which had been ordered deposited with a trust company.

Capozzi Enterprises Ltd. came to Medicor's rescue late last week with a loan, and in return won interim control of Northwest Sports.

Garrison Finish For Golf League

Wednesday, Gorge Vale plays at Cedar Hill, Victoria is at Uplands and Colwood plays host to the Glen Meadows team.

As it turns out, the top three meet the bottom three.

Gorge Vale leads with 22½ points, followed by Glen Meadows at 22, Victoria at 21½, Uplands at 17 along with Cedar Hill and Colwood with eight.

Wellings, Nelson In Sharp Displays

Two sparkling pitching performances led Stuffy McGinnis Softball League teams to victories Monday.

A one-hitter by George Wellings moved William Head Steelers past Colwood Inn 6-0, while Langford Drywall defeated Sooke Merchants 5-2 behind the three-hit pitching of southpaw Mel Nelson.

Langford's win put them back in sole possession of first place in league standings, two points in front of Century Inn. Colwood's loss kept them in fourth place.

Only Colwood's Peter Songhurst managed to reach Welling for a base hit, and that came in the seventh inning. However, Steelers were able to rock Colwood pitchers Don Shaw and Bob Caldwell for four runs in the second inning on the way to their shutout.

Sooke left 10 runners stranded on the bases and committed five errors in their loss. Langford centrefielder Tom Baxter stroked two hits to lead the winners.

Gorge Vale's Shirley Naysmith, with a 73, won the low gross title by eight strokes. Uplands' Kay Tribe was second and Glen Meadows' Edna Hay third with an 82. Clara Johnson and Dorothy Gower, both from Gorge Vale tied at 60 for low net honors with Mrs. Johnson winning on a countback.

Free Passes Hurt As Mabee Beaten

Bases on balls proved to be the undoing of Bob Mabee and leading Farmer Construction on Monday as Greaves Movers walked off with a 5-3 Senior Amateur Baseball League decision at Royal Athletic Park.

Mabee, who had been unbeaten in seven pitching assignments this season, struck out 11 batters but gave up 10 walks, including three in the first inning and four in the sixth when Greaves rallied for two and three runs, respectively.

Dave Graas threw a four-hitter to pick up his second victory while Greaves broke out of a second-place deadlock and climbed to within a game and a half of Farmers.

Benson 'Tricks' Press Corps

VANCOUVER (CP)— British Columbia Conservative Leader John de Wolf says Finance Minister Benson has tricked the members of the Ottawa Press Gallery into giving the impression that the federal budget contains massive tax cuts.

"And he did it as easy as Willie Mays batting a home run in a little league game," Mr. de Wolf told a news conference Monday.

At the televised gallery's news conference with the minister Friday the main question seemed to be the budget's effect on the calling of a federal election . . . The Press Gallery was not probing deeply enough."

The budget and the tax "reform" bill presented by Mr. Benson, he said, should be viewed separately, because they are separate documents.

The budget is a key instrument to influence the economy, he pointed out, whereas the tax bill proposes tax changes that will not take effect until Jan. 1 at the earliest, the three-quarter mark of the current fiscal year covered by the budget.

NO STIMULATION

Far from being massive or even generous, said Mr. de Wolf, the budget tax cuts are minimal and will do nothing to stimulate the economy.

Only $30 extra will go into the pockets of the average family, he claimed.

"Taken at present rates of increase in the cost of living, that $30 will be more than wiped out by inflation, so that the net effect of the government's actual tax cuts and its management of the economy related to inflation will leave the average family worse off."

Mr. Benson' combining o the budget and the tax change bill was a "deliberate propaganda device" on the finance minister's part, Mr de Wolf charged.

He said that while the budget contains little in tax reductions, it does include massive additional spending by Ottawa—$1.3 billion more, to create a $750 million deficit.

RAPS PAYMENTS

Included in the extra spending is an increase of $600 million in transfer payments to provinces, most of which, said Mr. de Wolf, will be in equalization payments to the "have not" provinces "of which at least 60 per cent will go to the government of Quebec."

He said he is now taking up Premier Bennett's attack on Ottawa's heavy equalization payments to Quebec.

He said that as a long-standing defender of Quebec and of Quebec's right to "feel at home in Confederation," he never thought he would be going on the attack in this manner.

However, Mr. Bennett, at last week's opening of the federal-provincial conference, had "rudely and crudely — but accurately" criticized the direct payment to the Quebec government of huge equalization payments.

Of the extra $600 million in transfer payments, B.C. will be paying about $120 million as a "have" province, Mr. de Wolf said.

He said he has written to Mr. Benson asking for details of just where the extra $600 million is going.

"It is absolutely essential to know to what extent we are financing the government of Quebec," he said.

Toll Increases on Seaway Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The president and general manager of the Great Lakes Waterways Development Association warned today that toll increases on the Canadian section of the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Welland Ship Canal would have a "devastating" effect upon the future of the seaway.

Stuart Armour of Hamilton told the association's annual meeting that implementation of either one or both of two documents recommending toll increases on these waterways would be "a dangerous act of international irresponsibility."

Mr. Armour was referring to the Carr report tabled in the House of Commons Jan. 19 and the easie Bind report of 1967.

In the more recent report, the Ottawa consulting firm of D. William Carr and Associates recommended an increase in seaway tolls of 27.6 per cent between 1972 and 1976.

The Bind report proposed that existing Welland vessel lockage charges be replaced in 1972 by tolls of 50 cents a net ton on all bulk cargoes and $1 a net ton on general cargoes. Present cost for each fully loaded transit of this wholly Canadian waterway, regardless of type of cargo carried, is $800.

Mr. Armour compared these recommendations with the United States Merchant Marine Act of 1970 which froze tolls on the U.S. section of the international seaway from Montreal to Lake Ontario at the level established by international agreement in 1959.

The association president said the only reaction in the Carr report to the U.S. action "was a declaration that if Washington should fail to agree to higher seaway tolls, Canada should denounce the international tolls agreement of 1959, and act unilaterally."

He warned that if the U.S. should react to any Canadian unilateral action, "we Canadians might well be confronted with having to pay for use of those hitherto toll-free U.S. facilities."

Of the 27,000 miles of Inland and coastal navigable waters in North America, only the 124-mile section of the St. Lawrence Seaway on Lake Ontario and the 27-mile Welland canal are subject to toll or lockage charges.

National Probe Set On Eating Habits

The B.C. portion of a comprehensive survey of the health and eating habits of 20,000 Canadians will start this morning with a CBC Vancouver interview of team members and government officials.

Dr. J. A. Taylor, of the provincial health department; Dr. Zak Sabry of Toronto, national co-ordinator, and Dr. J. L. Gayton of Victoria, director of the B.C. survey, will take part in a panel interview to launch the B.C. study.

The survey will study nutrition, health and eating habits of 4,000 British Columbians during a two-year period.

Gayton said the study will be "the first truly representative survey undertaken in North America."

"Small surveys of specific groups such as school children or the aged have been done before," he said, "but there has been no study that included all economic levels and areas in Canada."

Nutritional deficiencies revealed in the smaller surveys caused the federal Food and Drug Directorate to sponsore the comprehensive survey.

The team of 21 professionals will begin the study in Chetwynd, 200 miles north of Prince George, June 28.

WELL-BALANCED

Vancouver Island visits will be during late August. The Nutrition Canada team will be in Victoria Aug. 26, 30 and 31 and in Sidney Aug. 27.

The team hopes to process 40 to 50 people a day in each area.

Households from which subjects will be chosen are selected by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to ensure a well-balanced mix of persons attending the clinics.

A DBS enumerator will visit selected homes to explain the survey and record basic information. The Nutrition Canada team will then interview the family and arrange a visit to the clinic.

After information about eating habits, choice of food and quantities eaten has been taken subjects will be examined by dentists and doctors.

Blood samples and body measurements will be taken and interviews with participants will attempt to uncover disorders that indicate nutritional problems. Information will also be taken on drug use and smoking habits.

Nutrition Canada is expected to cost $2 million. It will tell nutritionists what people are eating, why they are eating it and what results such choices have on the nutrition of the subject.

The study may reveal dietary hazards like the serious iron deficiency found in a large segment of the U.S. population.

It should also reveal data on levels of pesticide contamination and which sections of the public suffer the greatest risk.

Freemasons Mark Anniversary

The 100th birthday of the Masonic Grand Lodge of B.C. was celebrated by 1,100 visiting freemasons at the University of Victoria this weekend.

Freemasons travelled from across Canada and the United States to participate in the 100th meeting, spokesman Richard Colby said today. "There was even a representative from the Grand Lodge of England."

The three-day convention included speeches and reports by provincial and state Grand Lodge masons, a speech on the history of the Grand Lodge, written and delivered by Jack Marshall, and the election of this year's grand master of the B.C. Grand Lodge, Harper Baikie.

Visiting dignitaries were given a banquet dinner by former grand master of the Grand Lodge of B.C., Nicolas Mussalem, at the Empress Hotel, Friday.

The 2,000 visitors including wives of the masons left Sunday after a tour of the city.

No Refunds Given on Cans

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Supermarkets Dodging Litter Act Rules

By PETER McNELLY

Major food retailers in British Columbia are violating the provincial Litter Act by refusing to give refunds on soft drink cans.

The act requires any beverage vendor to refund containers at not less than two cents per item. Vendors do not have to give refunds on products they don't sell. Regulations under the act require vendors to accept up to 18 containers per person per day.

The following companies told the Times Monday they will not make refunds on canned soft drinks: Canada Safeway Ltd., Shop Easy Stores, Overwaitea Ltd., Hy Louie (I G A), Woodward's Stores Ltd. of Victoria and Kelly Douglas Ltd. which operates Super-Valu, Maverick, Fairway, Red and White and associated supermarkets.

These companies are refunding soft drink bottles, but most of them have dropped the 10-ounce bottles in favor of cans.

Customers wishing to return cans are being told to go to refunding depots. In Victoria, residents are being sent to the Victoria Bottle Exchange, Square Deal Second Hand Store and Abel Trading Ltd.

The Litter Act is administered by the department of recreation and conservation under Ken Kiernan. John Buckley, Kiernan's executive assistant, said today the stores must start giving refunds on containers they sell.

He said the depot system, co-ordinated by a non-profit company Pacific Reclamation Ltd., which is financed by the chain stores, has been working well but is not the sole alternative to refunding at the store.

●

"We're not letting this go on. We were hoping they would see the light and would realize. We feel that if a person is a customer and he buys soft drinks, he should be able to return them directly to the stores."

The government can take action against stores which refuse to refund cans, but it has not yet done this. Offences are punishable by fines up to $500.

Buckley refused to say whether the department will take the stores to court.

Individuals who have been unable to refund their containers also may initiate court proceedings by filing an information before a justice of the peace — not a policeman.

"We've been hoping and hoping that someone in the private sector would make a test case out of this. We don't want to hurt anybody; we don't want to play down the co-operation we have received, but we are concerned about the little old ladies and the youngsters who can't get to the depots."

Under section 3 of the act, vendors are permitted to create a depot system for refunds, but this does not limit their responsibility to make refunds at the store.

A check with lawyers in the attorney-general's department confirmed this.

"The depot was not to be considered as an alternative, it was supposed to be an additional method of refunding."

●

Buckley said the department recognized stores could be deluged with refunds, so it made a regulation limiting the containers to 18 per person per day.

Store officials say it would be unsanitary, costly and inconvenient to start refunding cans at the store.

Shop-Easy general manager Don Lovely said he understood food stores had met their obligations when they set up depots.

He said he is concerned about the legality of not accepting cans at Shop-Easy stores and wants to talk to Kiernan about it. Kiernan is out of town this week.

President of the Victoria branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control John White said Monday it is unlikely SPEC will take citizens' action against the stores.

"We have no campaign approach to it. We're more concerned about the over-all, long-term things," White said.

Chasing after every instance of possible pollution problems would "dissipate our energies," he said.

Instead, SPEC promotes a letter-writing campaign to government officials.

●

Statistics at Buckley's office show the depot system is catching on. All the companies named here work with Pacific Reclamation and its estimated 130 agents in the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

Participating companies pay Pacific Reclamation a monthly sum of money in proportion to their canned drink sales. Based on these amounts, the amount of cans being returned has increased from 10 per cent of sales in January to nearly 30 per cent in April.

Most chain stores sell bottled soft drinks only in large sizes for which they charge a five-cent deposit. Bottles are returnable at all stores.

●

Persons interested in filing informations before justices of the peace should have witnesses with them and say they believe the Litter Act has been violated.

Next step is issuance of a summons for the defendant. The complainant simply has to appear in court as a witness.

Five convictions have been made since Jan. 1, 1971. These resulted in two fines of $15, two more at $25 and one at $100. Other cases are pending.

REFUNDS? NEVER!

The Times today was unable to get a refund on 10 cans of Cragmont soft drinks at Canada Safeway Ltd.'s Burnside Plaza store.

The drinks were purchased at Safeway's discount store on Quadra Street, emptied, then taken to the Burnside store for refund. The Burnside store carries the Cragmont line.

British Columbia's Litter Act requires stores to refund beverage containers at two cents per item for brands they sell.

Cash registers at the Quadra Street store had signs saying cans will be refunded at Square Deal Second Hand Store. Registers at the Burnside store didn't have these signs, but a clerk said the store will not give refunds.

The manager was not available. The clerk said it wouldn't do any good to ask.

"We've never made refunds on cans," she said.

Rental Offences: Which Court Rules?

The B.C. attorney-general's office will not say whether infractions of the Landlord and Tenant Act should be decided in civil or police court.

J. B. Di Castri, inspector of legal offices, said today the attorney-general's department does not give out legal advice, but refers all complaints of landlords and tenants in Victoria to the city's rental advisory board.

The advisory board has no legal existence.

A meeting was called today to work out a request to council for legal status to do the work it does at present — provide information on the landlord and tenant legislation and try to mediate disputes.

DiCastri did say, however, that it is "generally agreed that it's a civil matter."

When asked about the section of the act that states certain infractions are punishable upon summary conviction by a fine of $1,000, he said further information should be sought from city solicitor Terence O'Grady.

Lawyer Alan Emery, a member of the board, said the provincial law clearly shows that disputes over security deposits and a number of other matters are enforceable through police and provincial courts.

"How anybody can say this is a civil matter is beyond me," he said.

SHOULD HAVE HELP

Bill Tindall, chairman of the advisory board and manager of the Better Business Bureau, said the board should have legal power to disseminate information and investigate disputes under the act, or be forced to disband.

Tindall also said the board should have some full-time help and office space to handle the work load which has increased greatly during the few months of the board's existence.

On a number of occasions, Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock has said he would not entertain a request from the board to get legal status under a city bylaw.

Emery said that without the bylaw "we are just a bunch of busybodies."

He said that there are obviously "a lot of people very confused about their rights as tenants and landlords."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson is travelling in Asia promoting the B.C. Festival of Sports.

Equal Prices Asked In City Directory

Victoria car dealers are refusing to buy the city directory until the publisher offers each dealer equal prices.

Bob Carere, president of the Victoria Automobile Dealers Association, said today directory representatives are "telling you one thing and doing something else."

Carere said the car dealers began to object to the offered price of $140 or each dealer when it was found one dealer had already signed for $95.

Other prices — all to pay for the same size of mention in the directory — were $190 and $100.

Carere said the dealers first offered to pay $75 each and this was refused by the directory, a Vancouver-based operation called B.C. Directories at 110 East 4th Avenue.

Meanwhile, Cornell Motors, after refusing a price of $190, was offered $100. Three-Point Motors signed for $95. Then Cornell's offer contract for $100 was not honored and the price was pushed up to $140, but it was refused.

Second War Finally Over In Electronics

The Second World War is finally over for Canada's electronics industry.

Removal of the 15 per cent war-time luxury tax on radios, stereos and TV sets in last week's federal budget proposals has been met locally by an immediate cut in retail prices.

"We've been fighting this tax ever since the war, and right up to Friday we had no idea it was finally coming off," remarked Eric Young, a major Victoria dealer.

Businesses contacted today indicated they had reduced their radio, stereo and TV prices by 10 per cent in anticipation of a drop in their suppliers' prices.

But no one has had a directive on the subject from either suppliers or the government, leaving retailers to play the tax tune by ear.

"We have nothing positive to give (in the way of discount)," Young said.

What if someone looking at a color TV set last week worth $700 expects $100 off the price today?

"We'll give him 10 per cent off and undertake to refund anything further when the situation is clarified," a dealer said.

Since the tax has been included in manufacturers' and suppliers' prices, it is not calculated on the cost to retailers.

2,000 Pushing Strait Marine Park

A petition was presented to Premier Bennett this morning requesting that a marine park be set up in the Strait of Georgia.

It bore 2,000 signatures and the backing of 13 local environmental groups and also asks that oil drilling be prohibited in the area.

Mrs. Kathleen Ruff, president of Voice of Women, said the purpose of the petition is to show the provincial government that the public wants the proposed park to become a reality.

"We are looking forward to seeing tangible results to the interest the provincial government has shown in the proposal."

Letters were also sent out to MLAs asking what their stand was on the issue. Out of 55 letters sent out, only 16 replies were received, 11 of which were favorable.

Pakistan Refugees Get Vaccinating Machines

Five high-speed vaccinating injectors have been sent to aid Pakistan refugees in India, it was learned today.

The machines, capable of vaccinating up to 600 people in an hour, went out with David Haft, assistant field director of the Save the Children Fund.

Local representative of SCF, Mrs. W. W. McGill, said she received a message Monday night from the head office in London, England, informing her now the money for the refugees is being used.

Victorians have sent $3,280 to Mrs. McGill at 3441 Mayfair Drive, which she has sent to London.

The message said that "further drugs, medicine, vaccine and temporary housing are being dispatched as soon as exact needs are reported to us by David Hart."

PAPER BURDEN IN THE PAPER

Esquimalt council decided Monday night the best way to get rid of old newspapers is to advertise in current ones.

To publicize the fact that Esquimalt garbage collection crews have now been instructed to pick up properly bundled and set aside newspaper, Ald. E. L. De Costa said the best method is to appeal to local media.

It would result, he said, in a 15 per cent increase in total garbage tonnage — an amount present crews could manage with no change in the service.

Council rejected a proposal that a drop depot be provided at a cost of $175 per month as an alternative to the garbage collection, in accordance with a public works sub-committee recommendation.

'MOST INCREDIBLE OF ALL'

Curtis Hits 'Straight' Grant

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today that "the most incredible grant of all" under the federal Opportunities for Youth program is the $15,000 for the Georgia Straight newspaper in Vancouver.

"I will not comment on the paper, for or against, but it is a purely private enterprise which is presumably making a profit for someone," he said.

All local municipally-suggested programs under the youth plan failed to gain approval.

"The approval of that type of project and the rejection of those in Greater Victoria and elsewhere which would provide employment and lasting benefit, for example trails, is most incredible. It appears that anything straight is not acceptable. It is the off-beat content being approved that is annoying people," he said.

He added that the youth program is "assuming the proportions of a national disgrace."

arthur mayse

BEFORE MONDAY'S long light faded, we took our dog for a run in a field where the wild grass grows tall. He vanished at once, but we could trace his course by the ripple that undulated across the grass tops.

He was running as a Labrador loves to, with a pause here and there to investigate an interesting scent. Occasionally the tip of an upcurving tail bobbed above the grass.

Once, far out, he reared to get his bearings — black dog alone in a purple-tinged sea. Then the ripple of his passage altered from a sweeping curve to a straight line, as he raced back to us.

He burst out of the field, laughing all over his face.

To a pair who like dogs and have never been without one for long, this purposeful return without so much as a call or a whistle-cheep was more than just one of life's pleasing sights. It was also a reminder that the most headstrong dog we've owned — or who ever owned us — has accepted his destiny as man's friend and good companion.

Some dogs achieve this happy state early in their lives. But it was plain from the day we brought Lancer home as a big-eared pup with snowshoe paws that he was something new in our experience.

He was friendly, boisterous and inquisitive as a pup should be. He exercised his baby teeth on anything he could get hold of. From the start, though, it was plain that he meant to be his own dog.

Even on his first night in his new home, he didn't cry. He learned his name, but would take his own time about coming when called. And while he would submit to head-strokings and scratchings behind his ears, his attitude indicated that he considered such demonstrations a bore.

Not that he didn't bestow a certain amount of affection: but it was casually distributed, and he showed no sign of choosing one of us to be his special person, as the dogs in our past had done.

Sometimes he would stand with his ears squared and brown eyes watching us as if he were puzzled, or perhaps waiting for the right word. Then he would flounce off about his own affairs, leaving us to wonder what went on in that well-shaped head.

As Labrador pups do, he grew almost visibly. Early on, he proved himself to be a keen retriever by land or water. He was gifted with speed, dash and intelligence. But he remained very much his own dog, and he grew more wilful day by day.

It was no part of our wish to have a cowed and spiritless dog. However, we did want one who would be biddable, for his own sake as well as ours. Municipal byaws apart, the free-ranging dog isn't likely to enjoy a long life.

In a district that has seen traffic multiply, the odds are against him, and the chances that he will sooner or later come to grief are very strong.

Lancer — friendly if not loving — was thoroughly undependable. Wild as a hawk, he passed up few opportunities to run away. Nor could we break him of the habit.

He learned to slip his collar, and he perfected other escape tactics faster than we could work out answers to them.

When he took off, as he might do even in the middle of a beach walk or a retrieving session that he seemed to be enjoying, we would set out to find him. Almost always, we were successful. He would then greet us amiably, hop in the car, and be a near-model dog for the next few days.

We hoped for a change in him, but didn't really expect it. Then one miserable winter Saturday, he whined to go out and I clipped his collar to his rope on our back porch. Sometime in the next few minutes, he snapped the weathered rope which I'd meant to replace, and was gone with only a dangling shred to tell the story.

We spent most of the day hunting for him, but this time we couldn't find him.

Long after dark, we heard a familiar thump against the back door. Lancer, rope still attached, had come home. He was wet, frightened, hungry, and painfully glad to see us.

My guess is that he had become tangled in dense brush, and held captive there for hours. I am guessing too when I suggest that for the first time in his life, he had felt a deep need for his people.

In any case, that night marked the beginning of a change. No miracle was involved — merely a steadying-down that continued with only minor interruptions.

We began to notice change in another direction, too. The dog that seemed to lack much depth of affection revealed a capacity for love.

He chose my wife for his person, but often, unasked, he will nuzzle my hand for patting, or lay his head against my knee.

He is six years old now, a Labrador in his vigorous prime. And though slow to find himself, as humans sometimes also are, he did so in the end.

A good dog. We wouldn't ask for a better.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me if it is possible for a woman to conceive while she's in the water. I mean in a pool, river or bath?—Must Know.

DEAR MUST: Not without a man.

DEAR ABBY: We had a letter from our son today. It was mostly full of "Who am I? . . . I am me," and all that rot. We are getting pretty fed up with his self-indulgent soul-searching, but we do want to keep in touch with him.

He says he and his girl friend (she lives in his commune) may get married soon. He also wrote that he may "have to" get a job soon as they are running out of bread, and in the meantime he would appreciate a little more help from home.

Well, that raised the temperature a few degrees around here. Two able-bodied young people should sit on the floor and ask, "Who am I?" while these two square old working parents send them money.

No, I don't think so. What do you think?—Letter from Son.

DEAR LETTER: Parents who subsidize kids away from home are helping those kids continue whatever it is they are doing — or not doing. No parent wants his child to starve, but the surest way to get a child to earn his own bread is to quit sending him dough.

DEAR ABBY: You recently had a letter from a woman whose boy friend told her he was not the marrying kind. Well, after she had lent him quite a large sum of money he upped and married somebody else, so she took him to court to get her money back and lost the case. You said, "A gift is just a gift, and a loan without an IOU may as well be a gift."

Abby, an IOU doesn't mean a thing if all it states is that you lent somebody a certain amount of money. To merely acknowledge a debt is not a promise to pay. In order for a note to hold up in court it has to state that a certain amount of money must be paid to the bearer of the note either on demand or by a certain date.—Alabama Law Student.

DEAR LAW STUDENT: And I O U a great big thanks for writing!

DEAR ABBY: I vowed that the next time a letter appeared from a widow complaining that her "friends" have abandoned her, I would ask you to ask her a simple question: "When your husband was alive, did you invite widows and other single women to parties and dinners? Or did you think of them only when your husband was out of town, or occupied elsewhere?" As far as I'm concerned, there is no more selfish or thoughtless group of persons than married women when it comes to unattached women. But with unattached men, that's a different story. An "extra" man is always welcome.

Please tell widows and other single women to forget about married friends, because they have certainly forgotten about her.—Had It in Hartford.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

ADOPTION TOPIC

Social Workers Meet

VANCOUVER (CP)—A controversial proposal for subsidized adoptions ran into stiff opposition and failed to be accepted Saturday at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Association of Social Workers.

The recommendation that a program of paying people to adopt children should be established by the provincial government, deriving from a special study committee, was tabled.

Executive director Dr. Glen Hamilton said failure of the proposal to pass did not mean it was dead, but he added that a committee probably would be set up to look into other ways of improving the situation faced by foster parents.

Delegates representing 1,200 social workers in B.C. decided that the committee should explore the possibility of amending the provincial Change of Name Act.

A program of financial aid for foster parents already exists in B.C. Couples might feel foster children were more "their own" if children's surnames could be easily changed without recourse to the Adoptions Act, said Mr. Hamilton.

FINANCIAL BARRIERS

The recommendation for subsidization said financial barriers are the main reasons why foster parents do not adopt the children in their care.

It suggested that foster parents with a total annual income of $8,000 or less should be automatically eligible for consideration on applying for such a subsidy.

Opponents of the proposal expressed doubts that the scheme would have the planned effect and argued that children, rather than benefitting from the subsidies, could be made to feel uneasy by the knowledge that their parents were paid to adopt them.

The meeting decided to ask the B.C. government to provide more funds to enable social workers to take courses and improve their qualifications.

Mr. Hamilton said 600 persons are under-trained for their duties in social work in this province.

Motions were also passed deploring the recent suggestion by Canadian Medical Association president Dr. H. D. Roberts that welfare recipients should be sterilized, and protesting the U.S. nuclear test planned for this fall on Amchitka Island.

Newly-elected president of the association is John MacDonald, assistant professor at UBC's school of social work and a Langley lawyer, who succeeds Cy Toren.

Other new officers are Joyce Preston of Prince George, vice-president; Marilyn Callaghan of Vancouver, second vice-president; and Stephanie Crane of Vancouver, secretary.

Students On Their Own

TORONTO (CP) — Nearly 1,000 of the 34,000 students in Toronto's secondary school system are living away from home, the Toronto board of education was told recently. Of the 998 living away from their families, 624 are on their own and 374 have been placed in group homes or foster homes by the courts or children's aid societies.

Study Outlines Day-Care Lack

OTTAWA (CP) — A study released Sunday shows that there is a gross deficiency in day-care services in Canada in relation to the need, says Dr. James Gripton, who analysed the findings.

Dr. Gripton, of Carleton University's school of social work, calls the study "a report on non-day care."

Done for the Canadian Council on Social Development, a national voluntary agency, that analyses causes of social breakdown and change, the study is based on a sample of 390 child-care centres.

Estimates made from the sample put the number of child-care centres — nursery schools, day-care centres and others—in Canada in 1968 at 1,412 serving 54,100 children.

But only about 12,000 of these children had working mothers and were in day-care rather than half-day nursery school programs, Dr. Gripton said in an interview.

This corresponded roughly with a 1967 study showing that less than 3 per cent of the 357,000 children of working mothers attended group-care centres.

Substantial funds for day-care services are needed, Dr. Gripton said. Services also had to be made more accessible.

The study says the changing role of women reflected in increasing numbers of working mothers of pre-school children has led to growing support of day care as a utility.

★ ★ ★

But, for this approach to be effective, public money comparable to the amount spent for public education would have to be injected.

"Indeed it might be strategic to transfer the administration of day-care services from welfare to education in the interests of better access to the public purse and the developfent of stronger community support," the study says.

It was important that day-care legislation and services give priority to safeguarding the interests of children and families rather than accommodating the needs of the labor market.

The study, which outlines day-care legislation now in Canada, calls Ontario's Day Nurseries Act of 1966 "the most complete and comprehensive in Canada."

It provides specific requirements on facilities, administration, programs, food, play space, equipment, sanitation and health.

★ ★ ★

But it had shortcomings, such as lack of provision for sharing the capital costs of establishing centres. Although the province assumed 80 per cent of costs of day-care services for persons in need, existing services fell far short of the need and were unevenly distributed.

The study says there is no legislation on day care in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Quebec. Aside from Ontario, only Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia administer day care under a single statute.

British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Nova Scotia provide funds for operating costs and Alberta and Saskatchewan provide funds for establishing centres.

Only Ontario, Nova Scotia and British Columbia have legislation on day-care services for infants.

The study, done with the aid of a federal welfare grant, also found major deficiencies in facilities.

Some of the deficiencies constituted unnecessary hazards to health and safety while others indicated uncomfortable quarters.

". . . Many centres offered unimaginative and sterile environments for the education and social development of young children," the study said.

Health and safety deficiencies included lack of protective caps on electrical outlets, unguarded fireplaces or radiators, insufficient exits, lack of fire extinguishers and unfenced or non-existent play areas.

Admissions policies in the 390 centres sampled were generally elastic and 85 per cent did not exclude children with special problems.

★ ★ ★

Staff were not required to have a medical examination in 31 per cent of centres and almost half did not require examinations for children. Almost one-third had no parental consent to arrange for a child's emergency treatment.

More than one-third did not employ full-time teachers and 24 per cent of all staff did not have high school graduation although most had taken some child-care courses.

Day-care centres were found to be superior, however, to both nursery schools and centres serving children with special needs in both facilities and health care. This might be because of stringent health rules under day-care legislation in Ontario, where a disproportionate number of centres were located.

The study found that most child-care centres were privately sponsored, 80 per cent were open five days a week, and 25 per cent operated throughout the year.

Most children enrolled were between three and five years of age and 16 per cent of them suffered from factors such as cultural deprivation or behavior problems.

Fees for most day-care centres ranged between $41 $41 to $70 a month, compared with the $11 to $30 range for almost half of the nursery schools.

Signboard Draws Foster Questions

Bernice Packford has better things to do than walk around the downtown area with a sandwich board slung over her shoulder.

She decided, however, that when public awareness could mean a home for even one more child in the Family and Children's Service receiving home, it must be done.

"You have to stop people dead," said Mrs. Packford, who has been with FSC since 1959 and is currently its home recruitment officer.

"When people hear the nitty gritty, they want information on the children and responsibilities of being a foster parent."

There are 475 children living with 325 foster families in Victoria, said Mrs. Packford.

All totalled the Family and Children's Service have 712 children in care at various centres, schools and boarding homes, but 15 of them are waiting for a foster home.

They may wait no more than six weeks in the three receiving and diagnostic homes, she said. Social workers are able to understand the needs of the children, working with them in these centres and studying their tests, and the FCS can look for a home that will best suit the needs of the child.

That's part of Mrs. Packford's job — making people aware of what's going on — so she took to the streets with her signboard.

"I'm going to go to any length to let people know there's a continuing need for foster parents. They're special people . . ," she said.

Being a public spectacle has paid off.

The day after Mrs. Packford stood in front of the downtown library receiving "peculiar glances" from curious passers-by, the FCS's phone rang continuously.

At the June 7 public meeting, 40 to 50 people turned up making it the "largest open forum we've ever had." June 17 a new group of 40 showed up at a second gathering to hear about the FSC.

"We usually have about three or four interested people at these meetings," said Mrs. Packford, greatly surprised.

Getting people out to meetings doesn't necessarily mean a new home for Johnny or Suzie at the receiving home — it's the application for a foster child that is concrete. At Thursday's meeting, seven out of the 40 concerned persons applied.

"That has never happened from one meeting," Mrs. Packford said. "I never fail to be impressed by my foster parents," she smiled, "and that's no exaggeration."

It was successful once, so the sandwich board, which some people noticed, may be seen again.

FAIR TREATMENT SOUGHT

'We Are Not Police State'

By HELEN MELNYK

A youth was walking down Rockland Avenue one afternoon on his way to work when a squad car pulled up. Police demanded to know where he was going, what he was doing and to produce Identification.

Is this an infringement of civil liberties or merely one of life's unavoidable unpleasantries?

Mrs. Charles Burchill, local representative of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, to whom the incident was reported, expressed indignation. "What right has anyone to require the production of identification? We are not a police state and we don't have cards for indentification. What would have happened to this lad had he not been lucky enough to have papers identifying himself?"

Apparently most Victorians would not be overly concerned about the matter. The Victoria branch of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association fizzled out from lack of public interest.

Ross Leighton, first and only president of the group, said that the "people just don't give a damn."

Mrs. Burchill said that none of the people that the group helped joined afterwards. She continues to handle cases however, referring those that seem "meritorious" to a panel of lawyers.

Many people are under a misapprehension as to what civil liberties are all about, stated Mrs. Burchill. It is not a quibbling with laws as they stand, but to insure that existing laws are fairly applied to all.

Most of the cases handled by Mrs. Burchill involve alleged police harassment of youth, particularly "long-hairs." "The law is often applied more harshly to the young than to others. For instance, it is a well-known fact that many middle-class people smoke pot in Victoria. Yet those arrested for drug offences are always the kids."

Police are inclined to pick up people who frequent certain bars where marijuana is sometimes smoked openly, said Mrs. Burchill. Two youths, both "quite respectable" were recently picked up by police after leaving the pub and taken to the station. After proving their identity, the two were released on the condition that if they were not on their way home within 10 minutes, they would be booked.

There is no justification for this kind of treatment, according to Mrs. Burchill.

She said that of those who complain of being harassed, few take any action. Nothing can be done unless the person involved signs an affidavit.

Police are often blamed for "bad laws," said Mike Hutcheson, a young Victoria lawyer. It is not their responsibility to make or interpret laws, but merely en enforce them. Many complaints made against the police, should be directed at the government. "Disagreement with law does not constitute grounds for violating them. The proper place to effect changes is through legislative channels."

Hutcheson said the multiplicity of laws make it difficult for laymen to be informed of their rights. Nevertheless, ignorance of the law is no excuse or defence for breaking it.

Many of the laws are extremely complex. He cited the question of the right of police to stop someone and ask for identification. The B.C. Motor Vehicle Act clearly stiuplates that police have the right to stop anyone driving a motor vehicle and ask for his name and address. The matter of stopping a person walking along a street is much more ambiguous.

According to Hutcheson, a policeman cannot technically ask a person to produce ID, unless he has "reasonable and probable" grounds to believe that the person either has or is going to committ an offence, or that he is a vagrant. A vagrant is defined as a person not having any apparent means of support found wandering abroad or trespassing and does not when required justify his presence in the place where he is found. Both conditions allow police a lot of leeway.

A policeman may make an arrest if he thinks he has "reasonable and proper" grounds to do so, said Hutcheson. He does not have to tell the person he is arresting, what the charges are. Even after taking the person to the station and discovering that there are no real grounds, a policeman has not infringed on civil liberties if he had reason to believe that he was justified in making the arrest in the first place.

"A person being arrested is not wise in resisting the police officer if he does not know what the charges are and whether they are justified or not. One who feels that his civil liberties have been infringed must prove to a judge in civil court that police did not have reasonable and proper grounds in detaining him. This is difficult to do. Charging a police officer is at best a means of reparation, not of prevention."

Police may be overzealous especially when dealing with so-called hippies, stated Hutcheson. "It's unfortunate when personal prejudices come to fore in a policeman, but he has biases and prejudices like other middle-class people. It's a fact of life that the young generation have to live with."

He said that there are no "sensible" grounds for refusing to tell a policeman where you live or are going, and not showing your ID. "There's no point in making a federal case out of the whole thing. It would be a great world if there were no prejudices. The Utopian concept is unrealistic."

BLIND TELEPHONER

Free Calls Lead to Job

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— Josef Carl Engressia Jr., who became interested in telephones because of his blindness and says he learned to call around the world without being billed for it, starts his first job today — with a telephone company.

"I guess they'll have me do whatever I can that they need done; maybe I can work on the test board," said Engressia, 22. He will be a $2-an-hour employee of the Millington Telephone Co., a small independent in suburban Memphis.

Earlier this year he was arrested and charged with defrauding South Central Bell by using mouth whistles amplified by a specially-built electronic device to make long-distance calls and bypass the company's billing equipment.

He says he could call anywhere at no cost and once even called around the world and talked to himself on a second telephone.

Engressia was fined $10 and sentence after being convicted given a 60-day suspended sentence after being convicted of malicious mischief in the South Central Bell case.

Engressia said that as a child his main contact with people, because of his blindness, was the telephone.

He said he first became interested in the technical aspects at the age of seven when a "mean babysitter" put a lock on his telephone. He learned to circumvent that and dial by using the disconnect buttons.

When he was a mathematics major at the Unierity of Southern Florida he had a friend in college build the electronic device that converted his whistle into a multi-frequency sound and allowed him to circumvent long-distance billing equipment.

He says he developed the whistling technique by trial and error after discovering that touch tone telephones, when dialled, made a tone he could duplicate.

His hobby was found out when he complained to South Central Bell about the difficulty of placing some call. The company found that he had not been billed for them.

W. S. Howard, president of Millington, offered Engressia a job after hearing of the charges placed by South Central Bell.

"It will be interesting to see just how far a blind person can go in this business," Howard said.

Adoptions Restricted

A shortage of adoptable children has forced a change in policy by the provincial rehabilitation department.

Opportunity to adopt will be restricted for single parents, older couples, couples capable of having a child naturally, and working mothers, the department announced Monday.

Applications from those groups will be accepted only if the adoption will "provide a resource for children with special needs, such as interracial heritage, health problems, behavior difficulties or a large family group."

The department links the shortage to a large number of applicants, to "cultural change" and to increasing community acceptance of "the unwed mother and her child."

Psychologist To Speak

Dr. G. A. Milton, chairman of the Department of Psychology, University of Victoria, will be guest speaker at a meeting of Birthright (of Victoria.).

Dr. Milton's topic will be Development of Morality. The meeting, to be held Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, is open to the public.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrologers consider Jupiter to be the most fortunate of planets; Jupiter is related to the zodiacal sign of Sagittarius. Many born under this sign are associated with philosophy, history and medicine. These are the natural teachers, publishers and authors. On the negative side, the Sagittarian can be pedantic. Not everyone can live with a Sagittarian, but very few persons would enjoy a world devoid of this intriguing zodiacal sign. Sagittarius is harmonious to Aries, Leo, Libra and Aquarius.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): One you depend upon may have divergent opinion on how to accomplish basic goals. Spread influence. You are not without allies. Mate, partner acts in eccentric manner.

Points System

EDMONTON (CP) — A merit point system to complement Alberta's driver demerit system is to go into effect July 1, it was announced Monday. Under the plan, motorists who take defensive driving courses will be awarded two merit points. A driver nearing suspension under the demerit system then would have a chance to save his licence.

Teachers Probed

SASKATOON (CP) — Department of education officials are investigating complaints of political statements made by teachers in class, Education Minister J. C. McIsaac said Monday.

Dr. McIsaac said in an interview that one of the complaints, from Meadow Lake, said a teacher told students if their parents didn't vote for the New Democratic Party, they wouldn't have water to drink because of a pulp mill proposed for the area.

Complaints also have been received of teachers booking off sick to campaign, he said.

Professor Charged

EDMONTON (CP) — Keith Elgie Latta, 43, a law professor at Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., was escorted here Monday afternoon to face a charge of non-capital murder in the June 13 shooting death of Bob Neville, a separate school board trustee.

Prof. Latta, who was born in Edmonton, was arrested Saturday as he approached his home in Kingston.

Neville, 36, was shot in his travel agency office in downtown Edmonton. He was shot once in the chest and twice in the back with a .32-calibre pistol.

Courts Explained

VIBANK, Sask. (CP) — Public concern for a more effective method of handling major labor disputes is what prompted Premier Ross Thatcher to propose labor-management courts, Saskatchewan Attorney-General D. V. Heald said Monday. Heald told an election rally labor courts could be the permanent measure that will effectively deal with strikes and lockouts.

Bill Creates Science Chief

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave final approval Monday to two bils and endorsed the appointment of a minister of state for science as it cleared the decks for today's budget debate.

Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial spokesman, kicked off the opposition assault on the federal budget Friday night, just after Finance Minister E. J. Benson's budget speech, and is to resume his remarks today.

The two bills given final Commons approval Monday are the clean air bill and amendments to the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act. Both now go to the Senate.

All parties approved creation of a ministry of state for science and technology, although New Democrat David Orlikow (Winnipeg North) doubted it would be effective.

He said it would be "just another ivory tower creation," without real planning authority or control over research policy.

CO-ORDINATES POLICY

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the science minister—still to be named—would coordinate science policy within the federal government, although each minister would remain responsible for the scientific activities of his department.

New Democrats unsuccessfully sought to extend the scope of government legislation that would provide fines of up to $200,000 for industries found guilty of air pollution.

The recently-created environment department would be empowered to set national air quality objectives and specific emission standards for all businesses under federal jurisdiction.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) moved an amendment to bring mobile pollution sources such as cars, airplanes and ships under the act.

He said two-thirmds of all air pollution comes from mobile sources, half from the automobile alone.

But Environment Minister Jack Davis called the amendment unnecessary and Conservative Lloyd Crouse (South Shore) termed it impracticable.

Mr. Davis said his department will use other acts to deal with mobile polluters—the Motor Vehicle Safety Act, the Canada Shipping Act, and the Aeronautics Act.

Mr. Crouse said automobile and airplane manufacturers must be given time to catch up with events. They were trying to reduce pollution from their products.

The amendment was defeated 120 to 12, with Liberals and Conservatives overwhelming eight New Democrats and four social crediters.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 151, Conservatives 72, New Democrats 24, Social Credit 13, Independent 2, Independent Liberal 1, vacant 1.

A similar fate befell another amendment proposed by Mr. Harding. This would have empowered the government to regulate pollution that damages property or "the quality of the environment," instead of just pollution that presents a signifiant threat to health.

The vote against this amendment was 120 to 12, with the same lineup as on the previous amendment.

Mr. Crouse said he opposed the second amendment because it also contained a provision to regulate pollution from mobile sources. That could lead to the automobile industry becoming prematurely obsolete.

ESTABLISHES SYSTEM

The legislation setting up a new system of advance payments to Prairie grain farmers was given third reading without debate. There had been debate in the Commons last week and committee discussion since May.

The advance payments have been given, without interest charges, to Prairie producers with oats, wheat or barley stored on their farms. The advances have been repaid by deducting 50 per cent from the price paid when grain is delivered to the elevators.

Under the new system, a set amount would be deducted for each bushel delivered. Interest would also be charged, at a rate to be set by the Canadian wheat board, when repayment is not made in grain.

But the first $500 of a cash repayment would be interest-free.

AIMED AT FEW

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the board, has said the interest charges are aimed at a few farmers who abuse the system by using it for interest-free loans, never intending to deliver grain. The wheat board would be lenient with farmers who could not delivery grain in repayment because of crop damage or other valid reasons.

The cash advances, up to a maximum of $6,000, would be based on the number of acres a farmer intends to assign to a particular crop and the expected sale price for that grain.

The amendments also enable the government to bring flax, rye and rapeseed under the advance payments act.

Other provisions provide for the payment of advances on unharvested grain that is in good condition—for example, grain buried under snow.

Before the Judge

An 18-year-old city youth was fined $350 Monday by Judge William Ostler when he pleaded guilty to possession of LSD.

John B. Sherber, 828 Courtney, was searched May 31 and 37 capsules of what was believed to be the drug MDA was found in a jacket pocket.

Prosecutor Rodney Taylor explained that the accused was originally charged with possession of MDA, to which he pleaded not guilty, but analysis proved the substance to be LSD.

Taylor withdrew the first charge after the guilty plea.

Ostler asked Sherber where the money came to purchase the druga. Sherber had said he was unemployed.

Sherber said he didn't know and Ostler added that maybe he didn't want to say.

"It leaves it open to some pretty nasty speculation," Ostler said and Sherber agreed.

Catherine Leznick, 48, of Campbell River, was given a suspended sentence with six-month probation and fined $250 when she pleaded to two counts of shoplifting.

A city policeman testified that the accused was apprehended late Saturday afternoon with about $2 worth of items from the F. W. Woolworth department store.

The officer said in a shopping bag she was carrying another $30 worth of merchandise from the T. Eaton store that she admitted taking.

Ostler gave the suspended sentence on one count and the fine on the second.

★ ★ ★

Philip R. Thum, 27, of San Francisco, was fined $300 when he pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

Court was told that about one-quarter of an ounce of the substance was found when he was checked coming off the Seattle ferry Saturday at 1 p.m.

★ ★ ★

Albert Spowage, 46, of 234 Gorge Road West, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to stealing a model kit from a small store June 6 and getting a refund for it from the same shop later the same day.

An officer said the accused took the kit from the Little Gem grocery, 148 Superior, and was refunded $5.25 for it.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said the man had a substantial record involving false pretence and theft from 1952 to 1965.

However, Macintyre called for a lenient sentence because Spowage had kept out of trouble for six years.

Ostler agreed.

★ ★ ★

John Francis Serase, 66, of 640 Dallas, was fined $200 in traffic court by Judge E. F. M. Robinson when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Robinson also suspended the man's licence for four months except for work purposes.

Queen's Scholarship Deadline July 31

A July 31 deadline has been set for applications for the $5,000 B.C. government scholarship to commemorate the visit of Queen Elizabeth to Victoria in May.

The award, for study at a United Kingdom university, is for students under 25 who have completed the first three years of undergraduate studies at one of the three B.C. universities.

The deputy provincial secretary's office is handling applications for the award.

Dog Licence Crackdown

Esquimalt council decided Monday to hire a casvasser to try to collect unpaid dog licence fees.

Council members had learned from a report that there are about 400 unlicensed dogs in the municipality.

The canvasser will cover an unspecified as yet four-block area. But if the method works the entire municipality will be canvassed.

In other business, council members decided to donate $200 towards relief of East Pakistani refugees.

However, their motives were questioned by Ald. Terence Prentice who wanted to give more. "Is this just a token effort to get us off the hook?"

Other aldermen quickly pointed out the $200 amount was "very realistic" because of a tight budget situation and that if everyone in B.C. gave just that much starvation would probably be brought under control.

The money will be sent to Oxfam of Canada, which requested the donation.

"Pakistan is part of the Commonwealth and they certainly need our support," said Mayor Arthur Young. "Money is needed now, not later."

THEATRE CALGARY PROFITS

CALGARY (CP) — For the second year in a row Theatre Calgary has ended its season with a surplus in revenue.

President T. G. Trehearne says the company, the city's only professional threatre, netted $13,839 during the 1970-71 season, up from a profit of $5,038 in 1969-70.

The money will be used to reduce the total deficit of the company, Trehearne said.

The company had a deficit of $37,439, now reduced to $32,401, during its first season three years ago. This year's surplus will reduce the amount to $18,562.

Ticket sales in 1970-71 amounted to $99,477, an increase of $13,981 from the corresponding period.

Fertility Rite Starts Do-Your-Thing Festival

PILTON, England (AP) — Ten thousand young Britons gathered today on a farm in the English West country to soak up summer's cosmic energy at a do-your-thing festival.

The five-day Glastonbury Festival celebrates the summer solstice, which was Monday, the longest day of the year and the beginning of summer.

Heavy weekend rains made the 110-acre farm a giant mud puddle, "but things are drying up now and it's going very, very well," said a spokesman for the festival's organizers.

The first arrivals passed the time singing and dancing, and the smell of marijuana filled the air. The police didn't say anything.

The festival program includes a fertility rite love-in, but one young couple got a head start today. They peeled off their clothes as other young people clapped rythmically.

WILLISTON ON DELTA

'Glib Answers' Rapped

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Monday it isn't possible for B.C. to create artificial flood conditions in the Athabasca Delta by releasing water from the Peace River reservoir.

He was commenting on reports that federal Environmental Minister Jack Davis had suggested the province could redress damages done in the Alberta delta by releasing more water from behind the W. A. C. Bennett Dam.

Williston said in Victoria that flood conditions would have to be created to achieve the desired purposes and this isn't possible now.

NATURAL

Work on installation of equipment has caused the closing of diversion tunnels, thus limiting the amount of water that can be released.

But low water flows of the past three years in the region are a natural phenomenon, he said. Releasing water now wouldn't solve the problem, he said.

Davis is giving "glib answers" on the problem, Williston said.

The minister said it is hoped the reservoir will be full some time next year. It was earlier hoped to have it filled this year.

Acting Engineer

Assistant Saanich engineer John Cowlin was named acting engineer by council Monday night.

He will fill in for engineer Neville Life, who has been ill recently and was in hospital.

Cowlin's appointment as acting engineer, recommended by personnel committee, was effective June 1 at a salary of $1,500 a month.

PROMOTED to the rank of colonel as of next Monday, local pilot Lt.-Col. A. D. Wallis, 42, will become commander of Canadian Forces Base, Winnipeg. He is now senior staff officer of pre-commissioning programs at Ottawa. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Wallis, live at 4200 Cedar Hill.

Egg Prices

Producer prices released by the B.C. Egg Marketing Board in effect today are:

| | Large | Medium | Small |
|---|---|---|---|
| Vancouver Island | 41 | 37 | 35 |
| Lower Mainland | 41 | 36 | 33 |
| Interior | 40 | 36 | 32 |

Recycling Depot

Saanich council agreed Monday night that a former winery warehouse on McKenzie Avenue can be used during the summer as a recycling depot. The property and building are municipally-owned.

The operation, handled by volunteers, sees non-organic material such as glass, metal, paper and other waste products gathered for future reuse.

Council was told that earlier consideration of Braefoot school annex had led to the belief that it was not suitable.

COUNCIL FAVORS ICE SURFACE

Saanich council voted 6-to-1 Monday night in favor of an ice surface for the fourth and final project under the 1967 recreation referendum.

No decision was made for the site of the project, for which $260,000 was authorized in the referendum, because the study committee has not come forward yet with a recommendation.

The referendum said the fourth project was to be a community centre at the McRae Estate, now known as Cedar Hill Park.

Council also approved an earlier recommendation that the firm of Peterson and Lester be appointed architects.

ALDERMAN REFUSED

No Report on Outfall

Saanich Ald. Alan Newberry tried unsuccessfully Monday night to get a written report on what happened to a council decision of last September.

He asked for the report on council's request for a Capital Regional District study of the kind of treatment plant that should be installed at Finnerty Cove sewerage outfall.

At present, the outfall discharges chlorinated and comminuted but otherwise untreated sewage. Its discharge is expected to be increased as new sewerage work gets under way inland.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he has been attempting "to correct the misinformation you have been peddling."

But Newberry said he was not going to be drawn into a debate and just wanted "a clear statement from the Capital Regional District regarding what action it is taking."

Ald. Edith Gunning said there was a subsequent request by council for an oceanographic study at Finnerty Cove, now under way.

Curtis said he is "distressed that one member of council continues to play footsie with those who think a treatment plant is the answer to all our problems."

When Newberry's motion was defeated, Curtis said any member of the municipal or regional district staff would be "happy to supply you with any minutes missing from your files."

The oceanographic study is expected to help decide whether a treatment plant is needed, but the final arbiter of this need is the Pollution Control Board.

Sewerage Action Started

Saanich council took action on two fronts Monday night to start new sewerage work in Gordon Head.

It gave final reading to a bylaw to borrow $1.4 million for sewers on the east slope of Gordon Head and the Swan Lake trunk. No petitions were filed during a 30-day waiting period to call for a referendum.

The contract for laying 17,510 feet of sewer pipe, more than three miles, was awarded to low-bidder Chew Excavating Ltd. at $154,903 for asbestos-cement pipe.

In other business, council voted to call a public hearing for this Monday night to rezone property on Seymour Avenue near Saanich Road for the Centennial branch library. Both Victoria and Saanich councils have approved a joint branch library being located on this site. Council appointed Sager and Marshall as architects.

A finance committee recommendation that community grants be limited to half a mill a year was not accepted.

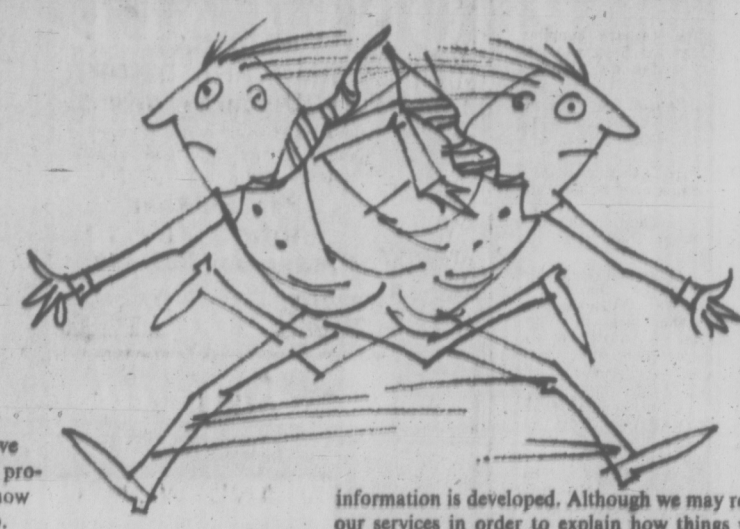
Don't panic over proposed tax laws.

Read why in TAX LINE our new, free commentary.



Relax. Don't make a move in any direction because of proposed tax laws until you know exactly what you should do.

Remember that proposed laws are only words. They're like theories. They haven't been tested in specific situations. They will be open to debate and interpretation. It will take time for everyone—even the government—to know how they really work.

For instance, someone challenges the legal application of a new law in some way. The outcome of such a case could drag on and on, yet could easily affect you. So understanding these new laws is a matter of waiting and watching as well as a matter of study and interpretation. We ought to know. We've watched new tax laws come and go for over fifty years.

This is why we're introducing TAX LINE. It will be prepared by our own tax consultants who will cover the tax scene, and report to you on developments. Most important, it will explain things in clear language. No gobbledygook. After all, what would be its use if you couldn't understand it any more than the wording of the proposals themselves.

TAX LINE is free, and will come to you as significant information is developed. Although we may refer to some of our services in order to explain how things work, you are under no obligation to come to us.

Then again maybe you'll want to. It's up to you.

Fill in the coupon below and we'll mail you each and every issue right off the press.

Cowichan Wants Showdown Vote In Malaspina College Dispute

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board plans a showdown with Malaspina College by forcing a referendum to decide once and for all whether people on central Vancouver Island want the college.

Cowichan trustees Monday reaffirmed their decision not to approve a $350,000 capital expenditure for the college without going to referendum.

Approval was given by the other four participating school boards — Nanaimo, Qualicum, Lake Cowichan and Parksville — about a month ago.

"I can't understand their decision," college council chairman Dr. Roy MacMillan of Nanaimo commented today.

"All it means is that we would be saving $65,000 by borrowing through the school district."

MacMillan said that currently the college is paying between 10½ per cent to 12 per cent per annum to lease facilities and equipment for the school. Salaries are all paid out of school board tax money.

ONLY 6½%

"If we could borrow through the school board and purchase the required capital equipment and books we would only have to pay bank interest at 6½ per cent," MacMillan said.

MacMillan said a referendum would not be held this year because it was not budgeted for but "hopefully next year."

"We are dealing with a principle a lot more than a sum of money," stressed school board chairman Dave Haywood at its meeting Monday.

Haywood said that the recent amendment of the Public Schools Act, which allows regional colleges to obtain permission for capital expenditures without going to the people as long as participating school boards agree, is "certainly circumventing the referendum process. I think this would be the time for the people who never really had the chance to say whether they want the regional college or not."

TAXPAYER TRICKED

Trustees feel that taxpayers were tricked into the college after they approved a plebiscite favoring the college concept in 1968. The college was started in 1969.

"There is a strong feeling in this district that we were tricked into this agreement in the first place," said Trustee David Bradbury.

"We are holding out on the principle that people should have the right to vote on the establishment of a permanent college," trustee Stan Turner, Cowichan representative on the college council, emphasized. "People haven't had that right yet but it is an entity. It is there.

'GO TO PEOPLE'

"I am not happy with their approach. I agree with their method of saving money but I feel they should go to the people."

Trustees were told that of the 40 per cent of the $350,000 that the college would be required to pay 27 per cent of it would be Cowichan's share. Turner said Cowichan paid $5,000 per student at the college last year.

"We had over 1,200 attending. Fifty graduated."

The college's total budget for a 15-month period of $2,228,000. Cowichan's share is $523,592.

Cowichan trustees technically withdrew from the concept last year because they didn't agree with the cost-sharing program. Although they are once more participating, they are still not satisfied with the financing of the college.

Judgment Reserved On Teacher

DUNCAN — Judgment on a charge of assault causing bodily harm against Cowichan school teacher Louis Trapler has been postponed until July.

Judge Lance Heard reserved his decision Monday in court here after a day-long session which was closed to the public.

A definite date for the judgment was not set.

Trapler was charged following an incident on Jan. 26 at Mount Prevost Junior Secondary after Trapler allegedly struck and injured 13-year-old Joseph Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Cook of Westholme.

Exchange Visit Annual Affair?

DUNCAN — The exchange visit of 36 Alex Aitken Elementary students to Kamloops was so successful principal Peter Yelland wants to do it again.

"The trip was a very worthwhile experience for all students," Yelland told Cowichan school trustees Monday. "I wish to make this type of experience at least an annual affair."

Yelland said the purpose of the week-long trip in early May which cost each student roughly $19 was to develop the understanding of the grade seven students of a completely different zone within their own province by studying the geography, geology, economics, history and ecology of that zone.

"Maps, pamphlets, books, films and many other teaching aids were studies beforehand," Yelland said. "Letters were written and itinerary's were drawn up. After the trip a proper daily schedule was prepared as well as a detailed description of any one day."

Funds for the trip were raised through bottle drives, car washes, bake sales and other activities, trustees were told.

The highlight of the trip was a visit to a cattle ranch.

Kamloops Elementary students made a return visit in mid-day to Alex Aitken school.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The recent death of our dear mother, Kathleen Dickie, has left an emptiness in our hearts that can never be filled, but the kindness and consideration of our many friends and relatives have helped immeasurably. We are deeply grateful for the many beautiful floral tributes, mass cards, expressions of sympathy and acts of kindness we have received. To the pallbearers, Rev. Father McNamara, Mrs. Smith and choir of Queen of Peace Church, to the Catholic Women's League and all those who helped with arrangements, we express our sincere and heartfelt thanks. We appreciate also the help and kindness of Rev. Father Costello, the Esquimalt Police Department and the emergency staff of St. Joseph's Hospital.
—Norman G. Dickie and family, William G. Dickie and family, Sheila Stirling and family.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the many friends, relatives and neighbors who have sent messages of sympathy, floral tributes and Gideon Bibles during the loss of our beloved husband, father and grandfather; also our special thanks to Dr. Byron Heal and staff of 3rd Central, Royal Jubilee Hospital, for their wonderful care of Mr. Veale; to Pastor Moore and those who visited and sent cards to him during his hospitalization. — Grace E. Veale and family.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to friends and relatives for their messages of sympathy in the loss of a dear wife and mother. Also our special thanks to Dr. P. M. Wolfe and staff of Royal Jubilee Hospital. — Mr. Fred Peach and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DALMAN — In loving memory of our niece and cousin, Joanne Dalman who passed away suddenly, June 22, 1969.
—Always remembered, Louise, Al and Kim.

DALMAN—In loving memory of our daughter and sister, Joanne Dalman, who passed away suddenly, June 22, 1969.
2 years have passed away
Since our great sorrow fell.
The shock that we received that day,
We still remember well.
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And silent tears still flow;
For what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
You bade no one at last farewell,
Or even said goodbye;
You were gone before we realised,
And only God knows why.
—Always remembered by her Mom and Dad; sister, Sandra and brothers, Steven and Kris.

DAVENPORT — In loving memory of my beloved daughter, Shirley Ann Davenport, (nee Brodie) who fell asleep June 22, 1969.
I do not need a special day
To bring you to my mind.
The days I do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.

They say time heals all sorrow
And will help me to forget.
But time so far, has only shown
How much I miss you yet.

God gave me strength to bear it
And courage to face the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.

It was God's will to take you
He knew you needed rest.
His garden must be beautiful
He only takes the best.

When I am sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong
I seem to hear you whisper
Cheer up and carry on.

Each time I see your photo
You seem to smile and say
Don't cry Mum I'm only sleeping
We'll meet again some day.
—Forever in my thoughts. Mom.

DAVENPORT — In loving memory of my dear sister, Shirley, passed away June 22, 1969.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Always remembered by Joan and children.

MOD SQUAD. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4 (rerun). "Just Ring the Bell." A touching segment which finds Linc befriending a little boy whose mother is more preoccupied with liquor hijackers than with her parental responsibilities.

BILL COSBY SHOW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). "The Runaways." Chet's psychology backfires on him when he runs across a young runaway. The boy (George Spell) hitch-hikes out of town after a parental dispute. Chet actually has set out to find him at the plea of the boy's mother and has to do some fancy talking to convince the boy to return home.

IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. The year was 1939 . . . Germany invaded Czechoslovakia and Poland, The Wizard of Oz and Gone with the Wind were movies to see. The New York World's Fair opened and Lou Gehrig made his farewell to baseball.

TELESCOPE. 8:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Monsignor Athol Murray is profiled. He is the founder of Notre Dame College, near Wilcox, Saskatchewan. He is also big in Canadian hockey . . . he was the first to scout Gordie Howe, and has raised money and support for Canada's national hockey team.

THE MOVIE CLASSICS OF DAVID O. SELZNICK. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. To give its movie night some perkiness during the summer doldrums, ABC has drummed up a series which will feature five films by the great moviemaker, starting with "Intermezzo," the film that marked Ingrid Bergman's American debut. She plays a young pianist and Leslie Howard is a married concert vionist who become infatuated with her. A vintage film, mushy at times, but nevertheless well acted.

TUESDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 9 p.m., Channel 5. "Night of the Following Day." Made only two years ago by Universal, this picture starring Marlon Brando, Richard Boone and Rita Moreno failed to get enthusiastic box-office response, which explains its early commitment to TV. Brando is mastermind of a kidnap plot, which is pulled off successfully at Paris airport. Jitters set in while the gang awaits the ransom, and the plot collapses.

ALL IN THE FAMILY. 9:30 p.m., Channels 7 and 12 (rerun). The recession almost reaches Archie. There's a big layoff in the works at his plant, and Archie is fearful. Since he can't sleep anyway, he keeps an all-night vigil until his fate is learned.

POWs — PAWNS OF WAR. 10 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. CBS's news team moves in with still another distinguished investigative report, this time examing the crucial prisoner-of-war issue that has become a major stumbling block in the pursuit of peace and the U.S. pullout in Vietnam. With the same incisiveness and probing that produced "The Selling of the Pentagon," and also anchored by Walter Cronkite, tonight's program is the first of two parts and will take a look at the physical condition of U.S. prisoners in North Vietnam, talk to their families, efforts to gain their freedom and conversations with Nixon administration critics, who say the POW issue is being used to prolong the war.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Sometimes, when a person collapses and perhaps goes unconscious, there is a question of whether he or she fainted or had an epileptic convulsion.

In a faint, there is usually a story of previous spells. An important point is that the person, almost always a nervous woman, will slump to the floor in such a way that she will not hurt herself. She may faint because of some emotional strain; she may have received some shocking news, or she may see her child bleeding from a cut or an injury if some kind. Her vision may become fuzzy or she may have a little nausea, and then she slumps easily. Or the woman may be slipping into the menopause, and for a while will have a tendency to faint. Or she may have a low blood pressure of a tendency to migraine, or just "nerves."

If the woman's mother can be questioned, the doctor will find that the fainting woman virtually always goes down in front of someone, and never when she is alone in a room. She has to have an audience.

The person having a convulsion may fall to the floor heavily — much as if his feet were kicked out from under him. He may cut his head or become badly bruised or he may knock over some furniture in the porcess of falling. The person who has fainted can get up and go about her business right away after "coming to," but the person who has had a convulsion may lie unconscious for half an hour, or may want to sleep awhile after falling, and be groggy for a while. The doctor may ask a relative and find that someone else in the family has epilepsy.

Older persons with hardening of the arteries may seem to faint, but I suspect that it is often because of a small stroke. What happens in that case is that a tiny artery in the brain plugs up, and the bit of brain supplied by that blood vessel for a short time fails to work.

There is no known treatment that can be counted on to keep persons from fainting. Probably a woman would be less likely to faint if she could keep herself always rested and in good physical condition.

UNITED NATIONS — U Thant's doctors are analysing the results of diagnostic tests carried out Monday to determine whether the causes of his present indisposition go beyond physical exhaustion. # Education Study Shows Experience Counts

Lower class children often enter middle class schools at a disadvantage.

That's not to say their intelligence (IQ) is less than that of other children. But it may indicate they haven't had the benefit of certain kinds of experiences which middle-class children take for granted.

University of Victoria education professor Roger Ruth is involved in a study to determine how to lessen class differences in learning, and the final phase of the study, which took place mainly at Victoria West Elementary, was approved Monday by the Greater Victoria school board.

RECALL TESTED

It's called Social Class Differentials in Verbal Learning, and the procedure is to have students listen to tapes of paired words, and test their recall ability after 24 hours.

"My approach is to try to present the children with something to learn, see how well they learn it, and try to improve their learning ability," Ruth said today.

Ruth said the study is founded on the assumption that there are no IQ differences between lower and middle-class kids.

"A particularly unpleasant aspect of the report last night was that it contrasted Vic West and Uplands," he said.

LIMITED

"I took both the lower and middle class children from Vic West. I went to Uplands simply because I didn't have enough middle-class children to complete the design of the study."

He was asked why middle and lower-class children have different learning abilities:

"An important part of this is the lesser amount of time the lower-class child has the opportunity of talking with his parents and other people."

Ruth said economic differences may mean the parents of lower class children can't buy books for the children or that the home won't have many books of any kind.

Some other studies which were approved Monday:

- A search for a more efficient use of time available for teaching of grade nine composition, by Dr. Richard Monk;
- An investigation of why classroom behavior often gets worse before it gets better, by Dr. Charles Galloway;

COLOR VISION

- An investigation of why determine whether intermediate children with color vision defects read colored maps more poorly than their peers with normal color vision, by Eric Domke of Bank Street Elementary;
- Administrative and managerial aspects of the elementary school principalship, by Gerald Jenvey, a Vancouver principal.

SIDNEY'S POPULATION OUTPACING ITS SEWERS

Sidney's rapidly expanding population has almost outpaced the Capital Regional Board's sewage plant capacity.

This disturbing factor came to light during discussions Monday between Sidney council, Capital Board engineering director Bill Gerry, engineer Martin J. Holden and Ray Lenowry, a consulting engineer from Willis Cunliffe Tait and Company.

Council also discovered it had little choice in actual approval of the $1,060,000 scheme. After detailed explanation, Gerry reminded aldermen they had by resolution given the region authority to go ahead with a design.

"Once council requests the region to proceed it cannot be held up," Gerry said, likening the situation to a patient requesting a doctor's attention and then refusing the prescription.

Sidney's population of 3,500 at the last census was the figure used by engineers in sizing a treatment plant, explained Lenowry. Additional modules can be added as needed and another stage will cost about $175,000.

Ald. Norma Sealy objected that with Sidney's present estimated population of nearly 5,000 "we are designing for yesterday."

Trunk sewers, however, will be sized to accommodate a population of 20,000 in line with the CRD letters patent.

Ald. Wilkie Gardener criticized the engineers' choice of submersible pumps rather than dry-well pumps. Sidney has found this method of pumping "phenomenally expensive to maintain" and was sold on the dry pump idea, said Gardener.

Gerry reminded council the region will maintain the pump itself and said he could not recommend a costly redesign.

Although federal financial assistance is promised in writing, Gerry said provincial government assistance cannot be obtained until contracts are let.

"We are buying a pig in a poke," said Ald. Fred Robinson.

Gerry said there had been evidence of retrenching on the part of provincial authorities in implementation of the Treatment Plant Assistance Act, pointing out that there is no positive assurance of assistance until final application.

Ald. Sealy asked the engineers' advice on the proposed building ban in Sidney recommended last week by the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

POLITICAL DECISION

"We would advise against putting more sewage into the present system," said Martin Holden, "but this is largely a local political decision."

Gerry said once tenders are called sewers could be in operation nine months later. He urged prompt acceptance of the scheme in order to take advantage of the construction season.

Sidney council is still dissatisfied with apparent discrepancies in sewer capacity figures and has requested all details before a decision is to be made next Monday.

Victoria Police Reject Wage Offer

Victoria police voted Monday night to reject a contract offer and at the same time voted non-confidence in the city police commission.

The offer, from the negotiating team of the police commission, was for five per cent increases (compounded) in each six months of a two-year agreement.

The offer would have raised the monthly salary of a first-class constable to $884 on July 1, 1972. His salary was $714 a month at the end of last year but this was adjusted specially to $728 at the beginning of this year.

Victoria Policemen's Union spokesmen were not available for comment today, but earlier one of them said the $884 figure would be $3 less and one year later than the same grade of policeman in Vancouver, who will get $887 this July 1.

Salary parity with Vancouver and lower mainland municipal police forces has been the primary aim of Greater Victoria police forces in current negotiations.

21% HIKE

The offer which was rejected represents a 21 per cent increase during the contract term using $728 as the base or 23 per cent if $714 is used as the base.

Lawyer E. E. Pearlman, spokesman for the police commission negotiating committee, said the offer was made with the first increase based on $728.

He promised a full statement, probably later today.

Dedication Of Project

Bishop F. R. Gartrell will dedicate 24 new single units, built at Dawson Heights as a centennial project, at a special ceremony Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

Also taking part in the ceremony will be Public Works Minister W. N. Chant.

The settlement for elderly citizens now has 99 units, 34 double and 65 single.

Originally called Twilight Homes Ltd., the area is now named after the late P. H. B. Dawson, who in 1949 approached Canon Frederic Pike, rector of St. Luke's Church. He asked if land could be obtained at the corner of Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Road. If it was, he would donate $100,000 for the building of low-rental homes for the elderly.

LOW PRICE

The land was made available at a low price by the church. Construction began, Dawson forming the non-profit Twilight Homes Ltd. Later a provincial grant made it possible to get additional property at the corner of Cedar Hill Cross Road and Ophir.

When Dawson died in 1962 the entire property was transferred to the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of British Columbia.

11 From City Get Degrees

Eleven Victoria area students received degrees from the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, during recent convocation ceremonies.

They are Melvyn Falk and David Higgs, master of science degrees; Edward Bird, bachelor of physical therapy; Kenneth Bartesko, bachelor of environmental studies; Claude Lavertu, bachelier-es-arts.

Johanna Kupp, bachelor of law; Mark Carlow, bachelor of physical education; Seymer Young, bachelor of science in civil engineering, John McPherson in mechanical engineering; Frank Thompson, bachelor of science, and Ralph Davis, bachelor of education.

Oil Hunt Aided

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has signed a pact to help Bolivia explore for oil and gas on the high, undeveloped Andean plateau in the western part of the country. The Bolivian embassy reported that a team of six Soviet experts would soon travel to Bolivia to study the project and determine the amount of financial support to be given.

Plants Slow to Develop

By HILDA BEASTALL

Some years we find our summer garden flowers are slow to develop the show of color we anticipate. A cool beginning to summer such as we have experienced means that warm-weather plants will be late flowering.

Hilda

To know whether our plants are responding normally under the weather conditions or whether we can blame our soil and general culture, we must know something of the origins of what we grow.

Petunia, ageratum, verbena, California-poppy (Eschscholzia), nasturtium, celosia, portulaca, amaranthus — all are native to South American countries where sunshine and warmth are daily fare after the seeds germinate in spring.

In a season when sunshine is short, and the days correspondingly cool these plants will grow along slowly but are not likely to make flower buds until later in the summer.

However, by attending to their minimum requirements for water during this period we shall build good strong plants.

Be careful not to overwater, and when moisture is necessary apply in the morning with low pressure directly to the soil, not all over the foliage to chill the plants.

Do not add fertilizer in the belief that flowers will result from feeding. Sunshine and warmth are needed, and you will see results as soon as these come along.

In the meantime, enjoy the cool weather annuals — pansies, snapdragons, nicotines, schizanthus, nemesia, nigella. So long as these plants have an open garden position and reasonably good soil, they will continue to bloom.

Removing old flower stems before seed forms will keep them going until hot weather.

The South African annuals, many are daisy-type flowers, also require warm summers to produce their masses of blooms. Nearly all expand their petals only in bright sunlight, closing at night and remaining closed on dull days.

We notice this particularly with dimorphotheca (Cape-marigold), messembryanthemum (Fig-mariogld), arctotis, bazania and venidium.

If we use caution in our culture now, we shall be richly rewarded later in the season. Should the season fail us, we shall at least have made worthwhile discoveries about our plants.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED Karpin

There is no doubt that the calibre of bridge among tournament players has increased tremendously during the past decade. Not only are there many more good players — a natural development considering that there are many more participants now compared to years ago — but the current ration of good players to poor players is fantastically high.

A concrete example of the abilities of unknown tournament players can be evidenced in today's deal, which has become a classic one. North and South were two of the nation's top players. Their wives were sitting East and West. The deal arose in a duplicate game.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

Opening lead: Two of ◇.

On West's opening of the diamond duce, declarer was put to an immediate guess: Should he play dummy's jack or king? He decided that West (his wife) was not nervy enough to have underled an ace at trick one, so he put up dummy's jack. East took the trick with her queen, and returned a diamond, West's ace winning. A third diamond was now led, dummy's king taking the trick as declarer discarded six of hearts.

A low heart to declarer's queen was then played, and this was followed by a low trump toward the dummy. Without a flicker of an eyelash, West followed suit with the three-spot. Declarer, assuming that if West (his wife) had the trump king, she would have taken it, put up dummy's ten-spot. Upon winning with the jack, East returned her fourth diamond — and declarer could not prevent West's king of trumps from taking the setting trick.

Had declarer guessed correctly, he could have made 12 tricks. If he had put up dummy's king at trick one, it would have won the trick. The three top hearts would then have been cashed, declarer's remaining diamond being discarded on the third heart lead. A trump would then have been led to declarer's ace, after which a low trump would have been led towards dummy. West would have been forced to take her king, for the defenders' only trick.

But East and West were just too good: they twice put declarer to a guess in critical situations — and he misguessed each time.

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian archaeologists have discovered a 5,000-year-old mummy — the oldest yet unearthed — in near-perfect condition, the newspaper Al Abram says.

It described the event as the most important historical discovery in Egypt since Tutankhamun's tomb was unearthed in 1922.

FORMER POVERTY STAFF WORKERS 'VIOLATED' OATHS

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) accused four former staff members of the Senate poverty committee Thursday of a grave misuse of confidential and privileged documents.

All four—economists Peter Penz and Brian Hill, and writers Bill Cameron and Ian Adams—deny that they violated any oaths of secrecy in an article on the committee's work published Monday.

The issue may come before a special Senate committee on privilege.

Senator Jacques Flynn (PC—Quebec), Senate opposition leader, after hearing Senator Croll's prepared Senate statement, said the matter appears serious. He would consider moving a motion today asking that a Senate committee inquire into the matter.

Senator David Walker (PC—Ontario) asked whether the four could get jail sentences if they abused any oaths they took when they joined the committee.

Government Senate Leader Paul Martin (L—Ontario) said it was best to await Senator Flynn's speech before making further statements.

The four former committee employees wrote an article for The Last Post, a Montreal-based monthly publication, saying they quit the committee in April after a disagreement with Senator Croll, the chairman.

"We resigned because the chairman did not want to accept a candid appraisal of our society," they said.

They also said that the committee "has already used the issue of confidentiality in an attempt to block the publication of this work."

The four declared that all Senator Croll wanted "was a rather maudlin discussion of what it was like to be poor, an indignant denunciation of the inadequacies of the current welfare system, followed by a call for a guaranteed annual income."

Senator Croll told the Senate he did not intend "to get in a slanging match" with the four.

But publication of the Senate committee's report on poverty would be delayed until September because work supposed to be done by them was in fact incomplete.

The committee had hoped to make the report public by last Easter.

Senator Croll said that last April, after the four resigned, he placed on the Senate record the agreement and contract signed by Mr. Adams, Mr. Hill and Mr. Cameron. He also quoted from a parliamentary expert who said publication of any portion of evidence or documents given to special committees was a breach of privilege of the Senate.

Mr. Penz, because he was employed by the manpower department, already was bound by such an oath of secrecy, said Senator Croll.

All four were mailed copies of the statement, along with the request they return any material belonging to the committee which they might have in their possession, he said.

"No acknowledgements or replies were received in respect of either the Senate Hansards or of the registered letters," he said.

Subpoenas For Phone Officials

VANCOUVER (CP)—At the request of the B.C. Federation of Labor the railway transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission Monday issued subpoenas to executives of two B.C. Telephone Company affiliates.

The move came on the 11th day of a hearing into a B.C. Tel rate application. It reverses an earlier ruling by the committee that it had no power to command affiliates to produce witnesses.

The subpoenas have gone to officias of Dominion Directory Co. Ltd. and Canadian Telephone and Supplies Ltd. They will take the witness stand today.

The change of mind by the committee follows an opinion given in the Federal Court of Canada Friday by Mr. Chief Justice W. R. Jackett that the commission has the power to subpoena witnesses.

Alex Macdonald of the federation, said that the subpoenas set a precedent where affiliate companies are called into question in hearings before federal regulatory bodies.

He said that as the commission conducts hearings on applications by gas transmission and railway companies, as well as telephone utilities, it could mean, say, that "in a situation where CP Rail pushes a job to a subsidiary, the position will be examined."

WANTED FIGURES

At the outset of the present hearing into B.C. Tel's application, both the federation and the attorney-general's department sought orders enforcing B.C. Tel's disclosure of dealings with affiliates and the financial statements of those companies.

The committee ruled against such moves on the grounds that they would be beyond its jurisdictional powers.

B.C. Tel is a member of a 136-company telecommunications empire controlled by General Telephone and Electronics Corp., of New York. The provincial company relies on affiliates for more than half its equipment and supplies.

The federation responded to the committee's action by deciding to press an appeal in the federal court in an attempt to upset the ruling.

On Friday, the federation withdrew its motion for leave to appeal to the court after the presiding judge suggested the federation try the "subpoena route" to gain the information it seeks.

UNFORTUNATE MOVE

Pierre Taschereau, presiding over the rate hearing, said Monday it was unfortunate that witnesses had to be subpoenaed at this stage in the inquiry.

Meanwhile, a telecommunications consultant said Monday he was suprised at the "extraordinary" behaviour of B.C. Tel in holding back information in a rates case.

D. E. L. Iliffe said that it had been impossible from information given by the company to determine what premium on operating costs was due to the utility's allegiance to first generation telephone switching equipment.

Mr. Iliffe, who was called to give evidence by the attorney-general's department was answering points put in cross-examination by Don Morrison for the telephone company.

He said that it appeared to him that B.C. Tel did not make comparisons of its own efficiency with that of other systems. "If such comparisons are not made you cannot judge the state of your own health," he said.

This Is Not, Repeat NOT, Victoria

While Victorians have grown pale and wan under dull clouds easterners, like this Montreal youngster, are looking for ways to keep cool.

Victoria's average sunshine for the first 21 days of June is 190 hours, but in the same period this year we received only 128 hours of solar warmth.

Meanwhile, Montrealers basked under near-record temperatures that have resulted in water rationing. Temperatures in many eastern centres last week climbed to the mid-eighties.

But every cloud has a silver lining. Victoria's average rainfall for the first 21 days of June is .85 inches, but this year rainfall is only 47 inches.

Monday — the first day of summer — it was the same old story: clouds. Still, yesterday's maximum temperature of 75 degrees was the same as a sunny June 21 last year.

The weatherman sums up Victoria's June weather thus: it is "certainly cooler and certainly cloudier" this year.

And the weather forecast for the next two or three days? Continuing cloudiness, coolness and rain.

Hydro Talks Continue As Strike in Second Day

Top union officials were meeting Labor Minister James Chabot today as nearly all 2,000 electrical workers at B.C. Hydro were on strike for the first full day.

The men began walking out Monday, the last day they could legally strike in the contract dispute with the crown corporation.

Left behind were skeleton crews in generation stations and control centres so that there was no interruption in power supply to consumers.

The only picket line which was established was at Jordan River hydro-electric construction project, where 250 men were idled. There was no picketing of Mica Dam in the Interior, where 4,000 construction men are working.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said close to 400 electrical workers on Vancouver Island were on strike today.

MINIMAL CREWS

Tom Forkin, president of Local 258 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the strikers are coming "as close as possible" to shutting down hydro operations in British Columbia, but service was being maintained with minimal crews.

Main effect, he said, would be to suspend all maintenance work. The union would have emergency crews available, he added.

Today's meeting with Chabot, in Victoria, was to be attended by Local 258 business agent Doug Cronk and Jim Wolfgang, the IBEW's Vancouver-based international representative.

"They are going to lay our whole position before the minister. They are going to make a strong appeal for some impartial independent conciliator to settle the dispute," said Forkin.

MAIN ISSUES

Main issues in dispute are wages — B.C. Hydro has offered a 14 per cent raise over two years while the union has proposed 18½ per cent — job security, in terms of protecting employees from contracting out of work and what the union has described as proposed weakenings by Hydro in the areas of isolation pay, job classifications and sickness benefit.

B. C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum, in his first full statement, said today the public would bear the brunt of the strike and it is "difficult to understand" why a strike should be declared "when they are already among the highest paid i nCanada."

He said the average income of journeymen linemen in 1970 was $11,165 and some electrical workres earned more than $16,000.

"We will do our best to maintain service but it should be realized that it will be extremely difficult for a limited number of management and professional personnel to do the work that is normally handled by 2,000 electrical workers," he said.

"It will not be possible, of course, to provide for any new customers while the strike lasts."

Shrum said the B.C. Hydro otver would raise the journeyman linefan rate to $5.77 an hour from last April 1 and to

NO OTTAWA APPROVAL OF MACKENZIE ROUTE

OTTAWA — The Canadian government has not approved in principle an oil pipeline down the Mackenzie River Valley from Alaska to the midwestern United States, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today.

Sharp reiterated the government's opposition to the proposed tanker route down the B.C. coast and said that this opposition was in no way related to the Mackenzie pipeline concept.

Court Hears Pentagon Case

NEW YORK (AP)—With all eight judges sitting because of the "extraordinary importance" of the issue, the federal appeals court here today considers the government's move to halt the New York Times' publication of classified Pentagon papers.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals extended a restraining order against The Times Monday to allow the full court to hear what the newspaper called "a unique case in the history of the nation."

Chief Judge Henry J. Friendly said that all the members were "in accord in their belief that this appeal raised the questions of such extraordinary importance that it should be heard by all the judges."

In a similar case involving the Washington Post, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled Monday that the newspaper could go ahead with its series based on the same Pentagon study but the appeals court quickly ordered a stay.

Now a third newspaper, the Boston Globe, has printed what it says are excerpts from the Pentagon study on the Vietnam war. It includes a report on a high-level meeting at which a top United States officer demanded that commanders be given the freedom to use tactical nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

TOP OFFICIALS MET

The report, taken from the 47-volume Pentagon study of the war, said that at a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Honolulu in June, 1964, Admiral Harry D. Felt, then commander of the Pacific forces, demanded the option to use nuclear weapons "as had been assumed under various plans." There was no mention of the "various plans."

Also present at the Honolulu meeting were Defence Secre-

SIGNAL INDICATES NEW LAUNCHING

BOCHUM, West Germany (AP) — The Bochum Observatory said today it was picking up a new radio signal that could indicate another manned Soviet space ship had been sent up to join the Salute space laboratory.

Director Heinz Kaminski said the new signal was picked up on a frequency normally used by manned Soviet space vehicles.

Bourassa Caught In 2-Way Squeeze

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition to any acceptance by Quebec of the Victoria constitutional agreement mounted today prior to Premier Robert Bourassa's meeting with the Liberal party caucus and his cabinet.

Rumors also circulated that acceptance of the Victoria charter may cause the resignation of some cabinet ministers of a shifting of their portfolios.

There was no official reaction to the rumors, but sources said Bourassa and Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay held a long private meeting Monday night before the premier met with other members of his cabinet.

★ ★ ★

Premier Bourassa told reporters Monday it was "possible" he would announce whether the province would accept or reject the Victoria charter following the Liberal caucus meeting scheduled for 6 p.m. tonight.

He added that no matter what the final decision is, it will be made known by the June 28 deadline agreed on by the 11 provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau at the Victoria constitutional conference held last week.

Meantime, the Federation of the Quebec St. Jean Baptiste Societies and its Montreal chapter placed a full page advertisement in Tuesday's editions of several French-language dailies, including Le Devoir, condemning the Victoria charter for a proposed Canadian constitution.

The advertisement referred to the charter as "an ultimatum on the Quebec government," and linked it to the so-called conscription crises of 1917 and 1944. At that time, a large number of Quebecers opposed conscription during wartime, though the country as a whole accepted it.

★ ★ ★

Premier Bennett this morning announced the B.C. cabinet had given the charter full support.

On Monday, Ontario Premier William Davis said his cabinet will give the charter "full and unqualified support."

Alberta and New Brunswick have also hinted support as has the federal government. All cabinets must decide within six days.

B.C. Supports 'Victoria Charter'

The B.C. cabinet has unanimously accepted the Canadian constitutional charter drawn up by last weeks' constitutional conference in Victoria.

Premier Bennett made the announcement today, saying he thinks all other provinces and the federal government will also accept it.

Bennett said he thinks the B.C. legislature will unanimously ratify the charter and repeated his earlier offer to call a special session if necessary to join all other governments in giving speedy approval.

Bennett, asked about the mounting opposition to the charter in Quebec, said that if he were Premier Bourassa he would recommend the charter to the legislature.

In 19 years I have seen many pressure groups attack us," Bennett said. "I don't think governments are elected to respond to pressure groups — they're there to protect the public from pressure groups.

He said he feels the charter will be known as the Victoria charter and he described the conference as "the most historic ever held in Canada since Confederation."

The premier said the charter should be considered in comparison with the BNA Act, not against some ideal of perfection in individual minds. On that basis, he said, everyone should be able to accept it.

Budget Debate Begins

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson was variously described by Conservatives in the Commons today as a "mobile catastrophe" and operator of a shell game.

The first description was plied by Gerald Baldwin, servative House leader, and the second by Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial man who led of fthe first day of the budget debate.

The debate will occupy nearly all the Commons' time until its scheduled adjournment June 30 for a two-months summer holiday.

AGRICULTURE SPEECH

Philip Drops 'Clanger' on Market

LONDON (UPI) — British newspapers today expressed surprise at a speech by Prince Philip on the Common Market made while British negotiators were trying to win the nation's entry to the economic community. One paper called him a "chump" for making it.

"Philip drops a market clanger," headlined the Daily Mirror over a story about Philip's speech Monday at a conference of Commonwealth farmers near Edinburgh.

In the address, Philip described the market's farm system as producing "a most frightful mess." He added: "I think that this is something this country is about to discover if and when it joins the Common Market.

★ ★ ★

"There are cases already within the market where long-standing agricultural patterns have been completely upended as a result of the operation of the Common Market system in Europe."

The House of Commons is expected to vote this fall on the terms for British entry to the Common Market which are at present being thrashed out in talks in Luxembourg. The issue is expected to come to a close vote.

★ ★ ★

In a front page editorial, the Daily Mirror said: "Prince Philip is a chump to make such a controversial speech about agriculture and the Common Market."

The Sun headlined its story: "Philip's market meddling."

In the Luxembourg talks meanwhile France and Britain were reported at loggerheads today over New Zealand dairy imports as the current round of talks went into its second day.

Dutch sources said Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France refused to discuss proposed British contributions to the market's budget until Britain's chief negotiator made a reply to the market's proposal for New Zealand dairy imports. New Zealand has termed the proposal insufficient.

No Refunds Given on Cans

Supermarkets Dodging Litter Act Rules

By PETER McNELLY

Major food retailers in British Columbia are violating the provincial Litter Act by refusing to give reunds on soft drink cans.

The act requires any beverage vendor to refund containers at not less than two cents per item. Vendors do not have to give refunds on products they don't sell. Regulations under the act require vendors to accept up to 18 containers per person per day.

The following companies told the Times Monday they will not make refunds on canned soft drinks: Canada Safeway Ltd., Shop Easy Stores, Overwaitea Ltd., Hy Louie (I G A), Woodward's Stores Ltd. of Victoria and Kelly Douglas Ltd. which operates Super-Valu, Maverick, Fairway, Red and White and associated supermarkets.

These companies are refunding soft drink bottles, but most of them have dropped the 10-ounce bottles in favor of cans.

Customers wishing to return cans are being told to go to refunding depots. In Victoria, residents are being sent to the Victoria Bottle Exchange, Square Deal Second Hand Store and Abel Trading Ltd.

The Litter Act is administered by the department of recreation and conservation under Ken Kiernan. John Buckley, Kiernan's executive assistant, said today the stores must start giving refunds on containers they sell.

He said the depot system, co-ordinated by a non-profit company Pacific Reclamation Ltd., which is financed by the chain stores, has been working well but is not the sole alternative to refunding at the store.

•

"We're not letting this go on. We were hoping they would see the light and would realize. We feel that if a person is a customer and he buys soft drinks, he should be able to return them directly to the stores."

The government can take action against stores which refuse to refund cans, but it has not yet done this. Offences are punishable by fines up to $500.

Buckely refused to say whether the department will take the stores to court.

Individuals who have been unable to refund their containers also may initiate court proceedings by filing an information before a justice of the peace — not a policeman.

"We've been hoping and hoping that someone in the private sector would make a test case out of this. We don't want to hurt anybody; we don't want to play down the co-operation we have received, but we are concerned about the little old ladies and the youngsters who can't get to the depots."

Under section 3 of the act, vendors are permitted to create a depot system for refunds, but this does not limit their responsibility to make refunds at the store.

A check with lawyers in the attorney-general's department confirmed this.

"The depot was not to be considered as an alternative, it was supposed to be an additional method of refunding."

•

Buckley said the department recognized stores could be deluged with refunds, so it made a regulation limiting the containers to 18 per person per day.

Store officials say it would be unsanitary, costly and inconvenient to start refunding cans at the store.

Shop-Easy general manager Don Lovely said he understood food stores had met their obligations when they set up depots.

He said he is concerned about the legality of not accepting cans at Shop-Easy stores and wants to talk to Kiernan about it. Kiernan is out of town this week.

President of the Victoria branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control John White said Monday it is unlikely SPEC will take citizens' action against the stores.

"We have no campaign approach to it. We're more concerned about the over-all, long-term things," White said.

Chasing after every instance of possible pollution problems would "dissipate our energies," he said.

Instead, SPEC promotes a letter-writing campaign to government officials.

•

Statistics at Buckley's office show the depot system is catching on. All the companies named here work with Pacific Reclamation and its estimated 130 agents in the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

Participating companies pay Pacific Reclamation a monthly sum of money in proportion to their canned drink sales. Based on these amounts, the amount of cans being returned has increased from 10 per cent of sales in January to nearly 30 per cent in April.

Most chain stores sell bottled soft drinks only in large sizes for which they charge a five-cent deposit. Bottles are returnable at all stores.

•

Persons interested in filing informations before justices of the peace should have witnesses with them and say they believe the Litter Act has been violated.

Next step is issuance of a summons for the defendant. The complainant simply has to appear in court as a witness.

Five convictions have been made since Jan. 1, 1971. These resulted in two fines of $15, two more at $25 and one at $100. Other cases are pending.

REFUNDS? NEVER!

The Times today was unable to get a refund on 10 cans of Cragmont soft drinks at Canada Safeway Ltd.'s Burnside Plaza store.

The drinks were purchased at Safeway's discount store on Quadra Street, emptied, then taken to the Burnside store for refund. The Burnside store carries the Cragmont line.

British Columbia's Litter Act requires stores to refund beverage containers at two cents per item for brands they sell.

Cash registers at the Quadra Street store had signs saying cans will be refunded at Square Deal Second Hand Store. Registers at the Burnside store didn't have these signs, but a clerk said the store will not give refunds.

The manager was not available. The clerk said it wouldn't do any good to ask.

"We've never made refunds on cans," she said.

Local SPEC Group Isn't Pressing Action Against Stores

A BIRD IS A BIRD is a bird, unless he is a toilet-trained talker named Rainbow. Mello Varner, 18, of Lake Tahoe has been raising eyebrows with her pet macaw since coming to Victoria on a visit. She says the talented bird is lovable and a "great smoocher."

Rental Offences: Which Court Rules?

The B.C. attorney-general's office will not say whether infractions of the Landlord and Tenant Act should be decided in civil or police court.

J. B. Di Castri, inspector of legal offices, said today the attorney-general's department does not give out legal advice, but refers all complaints of landlords and tenants in Victoria to the city's rental advisory board.

The advisory board has no legal existence.

A meeting was called today to work out a request to council for legal status to do the work it does at present — provide information on the landlord and tenant legislation and try to mediate disputes.

DiCastri did say, however, that it is "generally agreed that it's a civil matter."

When asked about the section of the act that states certain infractions are punishable upon summary conviction by a fine of $1,000, he said further information should be sought from city solicitor Terence O'Grady.

Lawyer Alan Emery, a member of the board, said the provincial law clearly shows that disputes over security deposits and a number of other matters are enforceable through police and provincial courts.

"How anybody can say this is a civil matter is beyond me," he said.

SHOULD HAVE HELP

Bill Tindall, chairman of the advisory board and manager of the Better Business Bureau, said the board should have legal power to disseminate information and investigage disputes under the act, or be forced to disband.

Tindall also said the board should have some full-time help and office space to handle the work load which has increased greatly during the few months of the board's existence.

On an a number of occasions, Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock has said he would not entertain a request from the board to get legal status under a city bylaw.

Emery said that without the bylaw "we are just a bunch of busybodies."

He said that there are obviously "a lot of people very confused about their rights as tenants and landlords."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson is travelling in Asia promoting the B.C. Festival of Sports.

Equal Prices Asked In City Directory

Victoria car dealers are refusing to buy the city directory until the publisher offers each dealer equal prices.

Bob Carere, president of the Victoria Automobile Dealers Association, said today directory representatives are "telling you one thing and doing something else."

Carere said the car dealers began to object to the offered price of $140 or each dealer when it was found one dealer had already signed for $95.

Other prices — all to pay for the same size of mention in the directory — were $190 and $100.

Carere said the dealers first offered to pay $75 each and this was refused by the directory, a Vancouver-based operation called B.C. Directories at 110 East 4th Avenue.

Meanwhile, Cornell Motors, after refusing a price of $190, was offered $100. Three-Point Motors signed for $95. Then Cornell's offer contract for $100 was not honored and the price was pushed up to $140, but it was refused.

Second War Finally Over In Electronics

The Second World War is finally over for Canada's electronics industry.

Removal of the 15 per cent war-time luxury tax on radios, stereos and TV sets in last week's federal budget proposals has been met locally by an immediate cut in retail prices.

"We've been fighting this tax ever since the war, and right up to Friday we had no idea it was finally coming off," remarked Eric Young, a major Victoria dealer.

Businesses contacted today indicated they had reduced their radio, stereo and TV prices by 10 per cent in anticipation of a drop in their suppliers' prices.

But no one has had a directive on the subject from either suppliers or the government, leaving retailers to play the tax tune by ear.

"We have nothing positive to give (in the way of discount)," Young said.

What if someone looking at a color TV set last week worth $700 expects $100 off the price today.

"We'll give him 10 per cent off and undertake to refund anything further when the situation is clarified," a dealer said.

Since the tax has been included in manufacturers' and suppliers' prices, it is not calculated on the cost to retailers.

2,000 Pushing Strait Marine Park

A petition was presented to Premier Bennett this morning requesting that a marine park be set up in the Strait of Georgia.

It bore 2,000 signatures and the backing of 13 local environmental groups and also asks that oil drilling be prohibited in the area.

Mrs. Kathleen Ruff, president of Voice of Women, said the purpose of the petition is to show the provincial government that the public wants the proposed park to become a reality.

"We are looking forward to seeing tangible results to the interest the provincial government has shown in the proposal."

Letters were also sent out to MLAs asking what their stand was on the issue. Out of 55 letters sent out, only 16 replies were received, 11 of which were favorable.

Pakistan Refugees Get Vaccinating Machines

Five high-speed vaccinating injectors have been sent to aid Pakistan refugees in India, it was learned today.

The machines, capable of vaccinating up to 800 people in an hour, went out with David Haft, assistant field director of the Save the Children Fund.

Local representative of SCF, Mrs. W. W. McGill, said she received a message Monday night from the head office in London, England, informing her now the money for the refugees is being used.

Victorians have sent $3,280 to Mrs. McGill at 3441 Mayfair Drive, which she has sent to London.

The message said that "further drugs, medicine, vaccine and temporary housing are being dispatched as soon as exact needs are reported to us by David Hart."

PAPER BURDEN IN THE PAPER

Esquimalt council decided Monday night the best way to get rid of old newspapers is to advertise in current ones.

To publicize the fact that Esquimalt garbage collection crews have now been instructed to pick up properly bundled and set aside newspaper, Ald. E. L. De Costa said the best method is to appeal to local media.

★ ★ ★

It would result, he said, in a 15 per cent increase in total garbage tonnage — an amount present crews could manage with no change in the service.

Council rejected a proposal that a drop depot be provided at a cost of $175 per month as an alternative to the garbage collection, in accordance with a public works sub-committee recommendation.

'MOST INCREDIBLE OF ALL'

Curtis Hits 'Straight' Grant

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today that "the most incredible grant of all" under the federal Opportunities for Youth program is the $15,000 for the Georgia Straight newspaper in Vancouver.

"I will not comment on the paper, for or against, but it is a purely private enterprise which is presumably making a profit for someone," he said.

All local municipally-suggested programs under the youth plan failed to gain approval.

"The approval of that type of project and the rejection of those in Greater Victoria and elsewhere which would provide employment and lasting benefit, for example trails, is most incredible. It appears that anything straight is not acceptable. It is the off-beat content being approved that is annoying people," he said.

He added that the youth program is "assuming the proportions of a national disgrace."

arthur mayse

BEFORE MONDAY'S long light faded, we took our dog for a run in a field where the wild grass grows tall. He vanished at once, but we could trace his course by the ripple that undulated across the grass tops.

He was running as a Labrador loves to, with a pause here and there to investigate an interesting scent. Occasionally the tip of an upcurving tail bobbed above the grass.

Once, far out, he reared to get his bearings — black dog alone in a purple-tinged sea. Then the ripple of his passage altered from a sweeping curve to a straight line, as he raced back to us.

He burst out of the field, laughing all over his face.

To a pair who like dogs and have never been without one for long, this purposeful return without so much as a call or a whistle-cheep was more than just one of life's pleasing sights. It was also a reminder that the most headstrong dog we've owned — or who ever owned us — has accepted his destiny as man's friend and good companion.

Some dogs achieve this happy state early in their lives. But it was plain from the day we brought Lancer home as a big-eared pup with snowshoe paws that he was something new in our experience.

He was friendly, boisterous and inquisitive as a pup should be. He exercised his baby teeth on anything he could get hold of. From the start, though, it was plain that he meant to be his own dog.

Even on his first night in his new home, he didn't cry. He learned his name, but would take his own time about coming when called. And while he would submit to head-strokings and scratchings behind his ears, his attitude indicated that he considered such demonstrations a bore.

Not that he didn't bestow a certain amount of affection: but it was casually distributed, and he showed no sign of choosing one of us to be his special person, as the dogs in our past had done.

Sometimes he would stand with his ears squared and brown eyes watching us as if he were puzzled, or perhaps waiting for the right word. Then he would flounce off about his own affairs, leaving us to wonder what went on in that well-shaped head.

As Labrador pups do, he grew almost visibly. Early on, he proved himself to be a keen retriever by land or water. He was gifted with speed, dash and intelligence. But he remained very much his own dog, and he grew more wilful day by day.

It was no part of our wish to have a cowed and spiritless dog. However, we did want one who would be biddable, for his own sake as well as ours. Municipal byaws apart, the free-ranging dog isn't likely to enjoy a long life.

In a district that has seen traffic multiply, the odds are against him, and the chances that he will sooner or later come to grief are very strong.

Lancer — friendly if not loving — was thoroughly undependable. Wild as a hawk, he passed up few opportunities to run away. Nor could we break him of the habit.

He learned to slip his collar, and he perfected other escape tactics faster than we could work out answers to them.

When he took off, as he might do even in the middle of a beach walk or a retrieving session that he seemed to be enjoying, we would set out to find him. Almost always, we were successful. He would then greet us amiably, hop in the car, and be a near-model dog for the next few days.

We hoped for a change in him, but didn't really expect it. Then one miserable winter Saturday, he whined to go out and I slipped his collar to his rope on our back porch. Sometime in the next few minutes, he snapped the weathered rope which I'd meant to replace, and was gone with only a dangling shred to tell the story.

We spent most of the day hunting for him, but this time we couldn't find him.

Long after dark, we heard a familiar thump against the back door. Lancer, rope still attached, had come home. He was wet, frightened, hungry, and painfully glad to see us.

My guess is that he had become tangled in dense brush, and held captive there for hours. I am guessing too when I suggest that for the first time in his life, he had felt a deep need for his people.

In any case, that night marked the beginning of a change. No miracle was involved — merely a steadying-down that continued with only minor interruptions.

We began to notice change in another direction, too. The dog that seemed to lack much depth of affection revealed a capacity for love.

He chose my wife for his person, but often, uncalled, he will nuzzle my hand for patting, or lay his head against my knee.

He is six years old now, a Labrador in his vigorous prime. And though slow to find himself, as humans sometimes also are, he did so in the end.

A good dog. We wouldn't ask for a better.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DALMAN — In loving memory of our niece and cousin, Joanne Dalman who passed away suddenly, June 22, 1969.
Always remembered, Louise, Al and Kim.

DALMAN—In loving memory of our daughter and sister, Joanne Dalman, who passed away suddenly, June 22, 1969.
2 years have passed away
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that day;
We still remember well.
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And silent tears still flow;
For what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
You bade no one at last farewell,
Or even said goodbye;
You were gone before we realised,
And only God knows why.
—Always remembered by her Mom and Dad; sister, Sandra and brothers, Steven and Kris.

DAVENPORT — In loving memory of my beloved daughter, Shirley Ann Davenport, (nee Brodie) who fell asleep June 22, 1969.
I do not need a special day
To bring you to my mind.
The days I do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.

They say time heals all sorrow
And will help me to forget,
But time so far, has only shown
How much I miss you yet.

God gave me strength to bear it
And courage to face the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.

It was God's will to take you
He knew you needed rest,
His garden must be beautiful
He only takes the best.

When I am sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong
I seem to hear you whisper
Cheer up and carry on.

Each time I see your photo
You seem to smile and say
Don't cry Mum, I'm only sleeping
We'll meet again some day.
—Forever in my thoughts, Mum.

DAVENPORT — In loving memory of my dear sister, Shirley, passed away June 22, 1969.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Always remembered by Joan and children.

Subpoenas For Phone Officials

VANCOUVER (CP)—At the request of the B.C. Federation of Labor the railway transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission Monday issued subpoenas to executives of two B.C. Telephone Company affiliates.

The move came on the 11th day of a hearing into a B.C. Tel rate application. It reverses an earlier ruling by the committee that it had no power to command affiliates to produce witnesses.

The subpoenas have gone to officias of Dominion Directory Co. Ltd. and Canadian Telephone and Supplies Ltd. They will take the witness stand today.

The change of mind by the committee follows an opinion given in the Federal Court of Canada Friday by Mr. Chief Justice W. R. Jackett that the commission has the power to subpoena witnesses.

Alex Macdonald of the federation, said that the subpoenas set a precedent where affiliate companies are called into question in hearings before federal regulatory bodies.

WANTED FIGURES

At the outset of the present hearing into B.C. Tel's application, both the federation and the attorney-general's department sought orders enforcing B.C. Tel's disclosure of dealings with affiliates and the financial statements of those companies.

The committee ruled against such moves on the grounds that they would be beyond its jurisdictional powers.

B.C. Tel is a member of a 136-company telecommunications empire controlled by General Telephone and Electronics Corp., of New York. The provincial company relies on affiliates for more than half its equipment and supplies.

The federation responded to the committee's action by deciding to press an appeal in the federal court in an attempt to upset the ruling.

On Friday, the federation withdrew its motion for leave to appeal to the court after the presiding judge suggested the federation try the "subpoena route" to gain the information it seeks.

Pierre Taschereau, presiding over the rate hearing, said Monday it was unfortunate that witnesses had to be subpoenaed at this stage in the inquiry.

This Is Not, Repeat NOT, Victoria

While Victorians have grown pale and wan under dull clouds easterners, like this Montreal youngster, are looking for ways to keep cool.

Victoria's average sunshine for the first 21 days of June is 190 hours, but in the same period this year we received only 128 hours of solar warmth.

Meanwhile, Montrealers basked under near-record temperatures that have resulted in water rationing. Temperatures in many eastern centres last week climbed to the mid-eighties.

But every cloud has a silver lining. Victoria's average rainfall for the first 21 days of June is .85 inches, but this year rainfall is only .47 inches.

Monday — the first day of summer — it was the same old story; clouds. Still, yesterday's maximum temperature of 75 degrees was the same as a sunny June 21 last year.

The weatherman sums up Victoria's June weather thus: it is "certainly cooler and certainly cloudier" this year.

And the weather forecast for the next two or three days? Continuing cloudiness, coolness and rain.

Hydro Talks Continue As Strike in Second Day

Top union officials were meeting Labor Minister James Chabot today as nearly all 2,000 electrical workers at B.C. Hydro were on strike for the first full day.

The men began walking out Monday, the last day they could legally strike in the contract dispute with the crown corporation.

Left behind were skeleton crews in generation stations and control centres so that there was no interruption in power supply to consumers.

The only picket line which was established was at Jordan River hydro-electric construction project, where 250 men were idled. There was no picketing of Mica Dam in the Interior, where 4,000 construction men are working.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said close to 400 electrical workers on Vancouver Island were on strike today.

MINIMAL CREWS

Tom Forkin, president of Local 258 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the strikers are coming "as close as possible" to shutting down hydro operations in British Columbia, but service was being maintained with minimal crews.

Main effect, he said, would be to suspend all maintenance work. The union would have emergency crews available, he added.

Today's meeting with Chabot, in Victoria, was to be attended by Local 258 business agent Doug Cronk and Jim Wolfgang, the IBEW's Vancouver-based international representative.

"They are going to lay our whole position before the minister. They are going to make a strong appeal for some impartial independent conciliator to settle the dispute," said Forkin.

Main issues in dispute are wages — B.C. Hydro has offered a 14 per cent raise over two years while the union has proposed 18½ per cent — job security in terms of protecting employees from contracting out of work and what the union has described as proposed weakenings by Hydro in the areas of isolation pay, job classifications and sickness benefit.

B. C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum, in his first full statement, said today the public would bear the brunt of the strike and it is "difficult to understand" why a strike should be declared "when they are already among the highest paid in Canada."

He said the average income of journeymen linemen in 1970 was $11,165 and some electrical workers earned more than $16,000.

"We will do our best to maintain service but it should be realized that it will be extremely difficult for a limited number of management and professional personnel to do the work that is normally handled by 2,000 electrical workers," he said.

"It will not be possible, of course, to provide for any new customers while the strike lasts."

Shrum said the B.C. Hydro offer would raise the journeyman lineman rate to $5.77 an hour from last April 1 and to

NO OTTAWA APPROVAL OF MACKENZIE ROUTE

OTTAWA — The Canadian government has not approved in principle an oil pipeline down the Mackenzie River Valley from Alaska to the midwestern United States, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today.

Sharp reiterated the government's opposition to the proposed tanker route down the B.C. coast and said that this opposition was in no way related to the Mackenzie pipeline concept.

Court Hears Pentagon Case

NEW YORK (AP)—With all eight judges sitting because of the "extraordinary importance" of the issue, the federal appeals court here today considers the government's move to halt the New York Times' publication of classified Pentagon papers.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals extended a restraining order against The Times Monday to allow the full court to hear what the newspaper called "a unique case in the history of the nation."

Chief Judge Henry J. Friendly said that all the members were "in accord in their belief that this appeal raised the questions of such extraordinary importance that it should be heard by all the judges."

In a similar case involving the Washington Post, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled Monday that the newspaper could go ahead with its series based on the same Pentagon study but the appeals court quickly ordered a stay.

Now a third newspaper, the Boston Globe, has printed what it says are excerpts from the Pentagon study on the Vietnam war. It includes a report on a high-level meeting at which a top United States officer demanded that commanders be given the freedom to use tactical nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

TOP OFFICIALS MET

The report, taken from the 47-volume Pentagon study of the war, said that at a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Honolulu in June, 1964, Admiral Harry D. Felt, then commander of the Pacific forces, demanded the option to use nuclear weapons "as had been assumed under various plans." There was no mention of the "various plans."

Also present at the Honolulu meeting were Defence Secre-

SIGNAL INDICATES NEW LAUNCHING

BOCHUM, West Germany (AP) — The Bochum Observatory said today it was picking up a new radio signal that could indicate another manned Soviet space ship had been sent up to join the Salute space laboratory.

Director Heinz Kaminski said the new signal was picked up on a frequency normally used by manned Soviet space vehicles.

Some Ministers Fight Charter

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition to any acceptance by Quebec of the Victoria constitutional agreement mounted today prior to Premier Robert Bourassa's meeting with the Liberal party caucus and his cabinet.

Rumors also circulated that acceptance of the Victoria charter may cause the resignation of some cabinet ministers or a shifting of their portfolios.

There was no official reaction to the rumors, but sources said Bourassa and Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay held a long private meeting Monday night before the premier met with other members of his cabinet.

Premier Bourassa told reporters Monday it was "possible" he would announce whether the province would accept or reject the Victoria charter following the Liberal caucus meeting scheduled for 6 p.m. tonight.

He added that no matter what the final decision is, it will be made known by the June 28 deadline agreed on by the 11 provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau at the Victoria constitutional conference held last week.

Meantime, the Federation of the Quebec St. Jean Baptiste Societies and its Montreal chapter placed a full-page advertisement in today's editions of several French-language dailies, including Le Devoir, condemning the Victoria charter for a proposed Canadian constitution.

The advertisement referred to the charter as "an ultimatum on the Quebec government," and linked it to the so-called conscription crises of 1917 and 1944. At that time, a large number of Quebecers opposed conscription during wartime, though the country as a whole accepted it.

Premier Bennett this morning announced the B.C. cabinet had given the charter full support.

On Monday, Ontario Premier William Davis said his cabinet will give the charter "full and unqualified support."

Alberta has accepted and New Brunswick has hinted support as has the federal government. All cabinets must decide within six days.

B.C. Supports 'Victoria Charter'

The B.C. cabinet has unanimously accepted the Canadian constitutional charter drawn up by last weeks' constitutional conference in Victoria.

Premier Bennett made the announcement today, saying he thinks all other provinces and the federal government will also accept it.

Bennett said he thinks the B.C. legislature will unanimously ratify the charter and repeated his earlier offer to call a special session if necessary to join all other governments in giving speedy approval.

Bennett, asked about the mounting opposition to the charter in Quebec, said that if he were Premier Bourassa he would recommend the charter to the legislature.

"In 19 years I have seen many pressure groups attack us," Bennett said. "I don't think governments are elected to respond to pressure groups — they're there to protect the public from pressure groups."

He said he feels the charter will be known as the Victoria charter and he described the conference as "the most historic ever held in Canada since Confederation."

The premier said the charter should be considered in comparison with the BNA Act, not against some ideal of perfection in individual minds. On that basis, he said, everyone should be able to accept it.

AGRICULTURE SPEECH

Philip Drops 'Clanger' on Market

LONDON (UPI) — British newspapers today expressed surprise at a speech by Prince Philip on the Common Market made while British negotiators were trying to win the nation's entry to the economic community. One paper called him a "chump" for making it.

"Philip drops a market clanger," headlined the Daily Mirror over a story about Philip's speech Monday at a conference of Commonwealth farmers near Edinburgh.

In the address, Philip described the market's farm system as producing "a most frightful mess." He added: "I think that this is something this country is about to discover if and when it joins the Common Market.

★ ★ ★

"There are cases already within the market where long-standing agricultural patterns have been completely upended as a result of the operation of the Common Market system in Europe."

The House of Commons is expected to vote this fall on the terms for British entry to the Common Market which are at present being thrashed out in talks in Luxembourg. The issue is expected to come to a close vote.

★ ★ ★

In a front page editorial, the Daily Mirror said: "Prince Philip is a chump to make such a controversial speech about agriculture and the Common Market."

The Sun headlined its story: "Philip's market meddling."

In the Luxembourg talks meanwhile France and Britain were reported at loggerheads today over New Zealand dairy imports as the current round of talks went into its second day.

Dutch sources said Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France refused to discuss proposed British contributions to the market's budget until Britain's chief negotiator made a reply to the market's proposal for New Zealand dairy imports. New Zealand has termed the proposal insufficient.
